

TREATY WITH RUSSIA SIGNED BY BRITONS

First Time in History of English
Treaties, Name of Monarch Is Left Out.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The general and commercial treaties between Great Britain and Soviet Russia, which were negotiated by the Anglo-Soviet conference, were signed at 6 o'clock this evening by representatives of the two nations.

In the entire history of English treaty making, this will be the first time the King will not sign a treaty, and it is creating a great deal of comment in London.

There has been an intimation in some circles that the Soviet officials were not willing to sign a treaty bearing the signature of the British monarch, but an official British statement explains that legal authorities have decided that the failure of any single executive to sign for the Soviet Government makes it unnecessary for King George to sign the document.

One London newspaper, in a description of the hastily drawn up treaty—which promises that the British Government will guarantee a loan to the Soviets if they meet the conditions laid down by the British Government, says that this unusual document is really a treaty to make a treaty in case the parties can agree.

The opposition press is bitter in its attacks on MacDonald and Pensonby and asserts that Mr. Joffe, who is the chief negotiator on behalf of the Soviets, is the man who surrendered Russia to Germany at Brest Litovsk.

Great Britain did not sign the treaty on behalf of the dominions so that no controversy can arise as to the validity of the treaty.

There will be a provision in the commercial agreement that the dominions may participate in it if they desire.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 8.—Proprietors of a soft-drink and cigar stand, which occupies space in the rotunda of the State Capitol, in marked contrast with art objects displayed there, will have to pay up back rent for 10 months or remove the stand, under an order issued yesterday by the Board of Permanent Seat of Government.

The rent now due totals $650. According to the board, no rent has been paid since October, 1923.

Owners of the stand are Harry Benker and William Robinson, employees in the State Auditor's Department.

MUNICIPAL STAGE IS REDEEMED FOR FASHION PAGEANT

Director Solari Handles Theater's Resources With Poetic Imagination and Chaste Simplicity.

LIGHTING CREATES
EMOTIONAL MOODS

Audience of 6000 Sees Opening Performance,
Based on Japanese and Spanish Themes.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

THE Fashion Pageant of 1924, which had its initial disclosure last night before an audience of 6000, established what some of us have long suspected—that there is one man who has mastered the secret of the Municipal Theater stage. He is a St. Louisan, and his name is Joseph Solari. Oddly enough, the fact is that Solari is a man of letters.

The task confronting the director of such a production is a daunting one. After all, its reason for being lies in the several parades of masquerade, displaying items of feminine apparel in appeal to the eyes of prospective customers. The director's labor is to build about this pecuniary motive an organic work of art.

Music of Wagner, Bizet, Chabrier.

He is aided by the fact that the Fashion Pageant management entertains no cynical estimate of its public. The performance opened with the music of Wagner, Bizet, Chabrier, and the music of the pageant.

There ensued quotations from such composers as Bizet and Chabrier. William A. Parson, who wrote several original numbers, was obviously anxious to compose the music in his power, and very excellent it was. Also, Mr. Solari, author of the scenario, was not fettered by any view that what the public wants is illiterate gibberish. So he wrote before the fairest flow of words as he went.

In the next place, Solari appears to possess an instinctive grasp of the spirit of the Municipal Theater, such as has been exhibited by no other director who has had that stage at his mercy. What others have groped towards for years he knows with the promptitude of a sympathetic talent. He has seized firmly upon the obvious, but seemingly unassailable fact, that this is an open-air stage. From that axiom he draws and inflexibly enforces the following corollaries:

All scenes must be out-of-door episodes.

All sets must be on a natural scale of size.

All sets must be three-dimensional.

The lower stage edifices the better.

Chastity of Means.

For instance, there was a scene entitled "The Festival of Cherry Blossoms." There were no artificial edifices at all. The properties consisted merely of paper parasols, two shrubs snowy with blossoms, and stilked pillars as a seat for an official. Yet the impression was instantly one of Japan—so much so that the stage had been cluttered with pagodas and temples. It was an instance of masterful simplicity and directness.

Lights, to this director, are not merely a device for flooding the stage with a powerful glare. They are used to form a disembodied drama of their own, brightening and fading step by step with the moods of the action. They not only make the stage visible; they create atmosphere and emotion.

Solari knows the effect of what may be termed planissimo illumination; and he ranges freely through the entire gamut of dynamics, reserving his forte radiance for his climaxes.

Among effects novel save in these productions were the elimination of footlights and the battery of lamps used by the Municipal Theater Association to dazzle the eyes of the audience into a state of blindness, so that it becomes optically unable to see the process of scene-shifting; the introduction of a pool of water in the apron of the stage, which serves as an enchanted looking-glass to redouble the forms and colors of the stage; the use of a sliding curtain of greenery; the employment of the turning pylons as additional points of entrance and exit; the utilization of the full depth of the stage, with its glamorous vista across the bridge; and a file of nine fountains, which, for a finale, jetted their slant toward the height of the oak trees, and glistened with all the hues of a rainbow.

Motives Japanese and Spanish. According to the two motives of the present mode, Japanese and Spanish, the scenario fell into two parts. By way of prelude, there was a scene called "Woman Undorned," with a figure of a woman in a fleshless pose upon a globe, and with a brilliant parade of the nations bringing tribute of jewels and raiment for her decoration. Then a curtain of two gigantic and confronted peacocks swept across the stage, blotting out the pageant. Through a circular aperture in the center, iridescent with the blue and green of the eye of a peacock feather, came the first parade of mannequins; in their way also representing a drama—that of sex adornment and capture.

The Japanese episode already referred to was enlivened by the performance of a group of astonishingly native acrobats and jugglers. It was introduced by a screen, in which imagery and extravagance know no bounds, a great many eccentricities and startling innovations are presented, which as authoritative styles must be accepted with a grain of salt. But through all the exaggerations, the discerning woman is able to trace the essential tendencies of the new modes. For this year's promenade it would seem, indeed, that the exhibitors had agreed to be a little more practical in selections, which are offered the Western and Southern trade, or fashion herself becoming a little less arbitrary and unreasonable. There were fewer freak or extreme styles than usual.

Paris Edict Not Followed.

We hear from Paris that skirts are to be shorter again but our local importers, when asked why the jazz orchestra which accompanied the parades of models, jarred harshly on the good music played by a small symphony orchestra, directed by Parson. Save for the acrobats, there were no vaudeville features such as were censured in previous productions. The Fashion Pageant will continue each evening, excepting Sundays, until Aug. 20. Among interested spectators on the opening night were Mayor Kiel, State Director Ralinger of the Municipal Theater Association, and many directors of that organization.

Whether or not heads are still good was another question settled in the affirmative, but with this qualification, that heads are not used as indiscriminately as they have been, but with more reason and design.

Marvelous patterns were worked out in beads and whole fabrics appear to be composed of them. One afternoon frock had a pattern of a Chinese print carefully carried out in all its motifs and colorings in lustrous leads so that from a little distance you could not have told the fine excrescences from threads of silk. And another black chiffon dinner gown appeared to be composed half of glittering crystal fabric.

One fact as to the silhouette upon which all the costume makers appear to have agreed is that hips must be narrow and backs flat rather than a mere extension of any indication of a waist line. Most of the gowns hang untrammelled from the shoulders. We hear rumors of another Directorate period with its short waisted lines about to descend upon us, but our local importers have not yet yielded to this change. Many skirts were full about the hem, but fullness was introduced by means of godets or circular sections flaring from far below the hips.

Just a few of the gowns were draped toward the side, though some had a circular flare from one hip only.

An intimation of the tendency toward the Directorate was an occasional high collar with cravat or jabot and a narrow gilet or waistcoat.

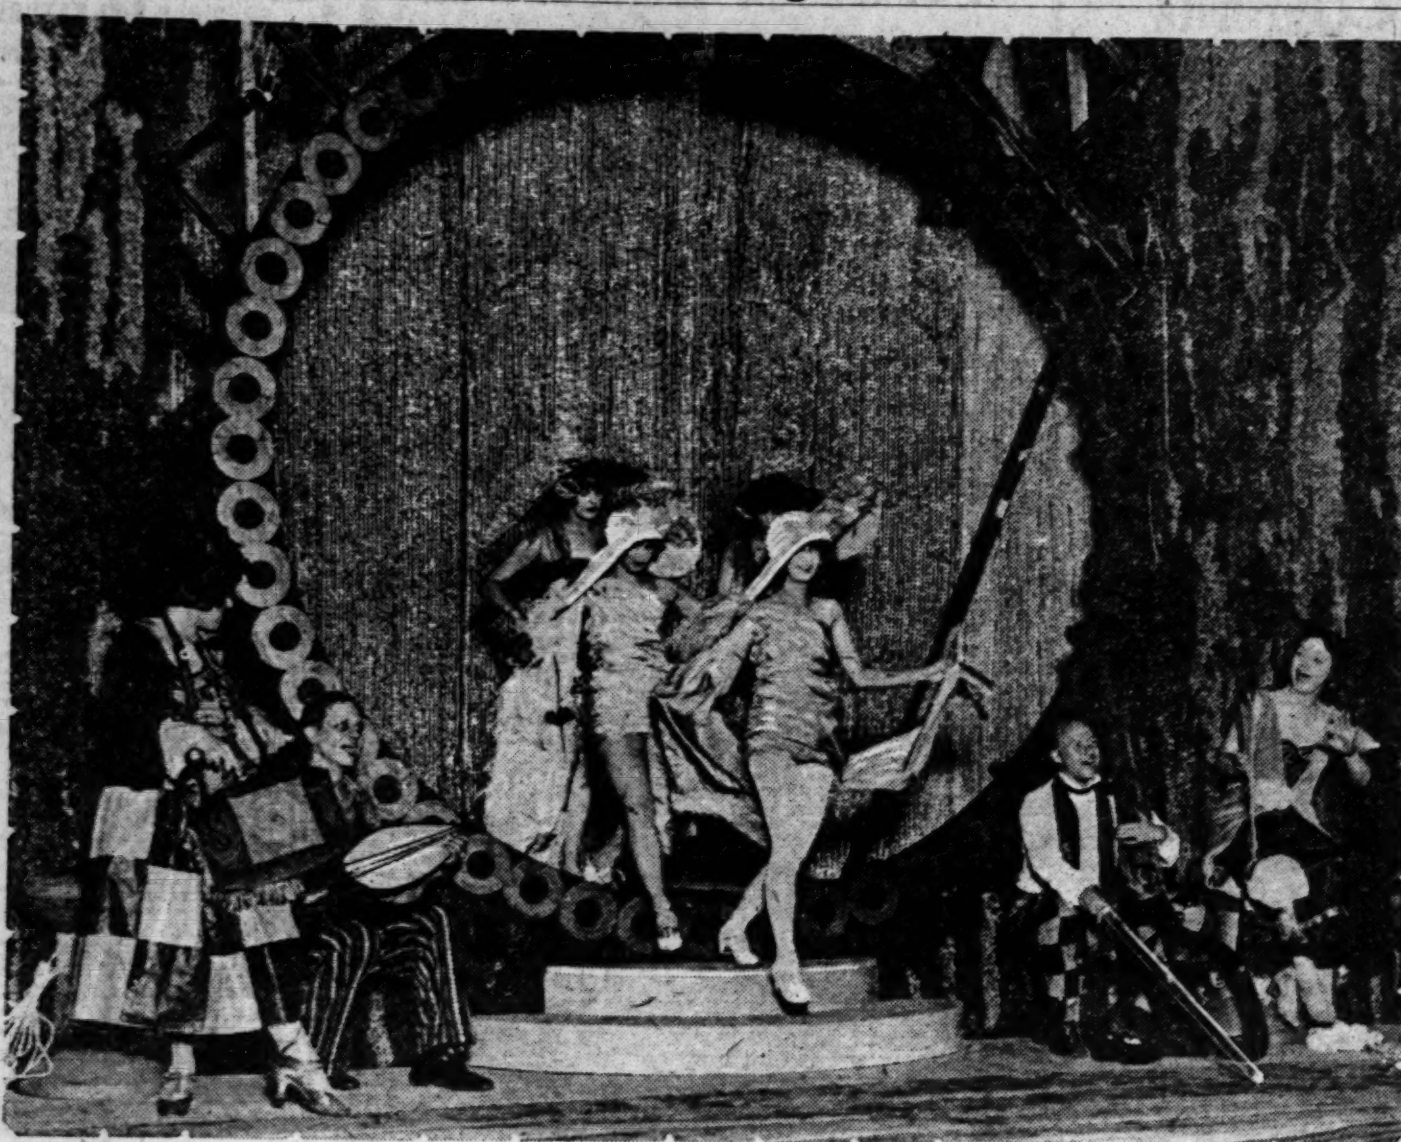

Slight Change in Hats.

As to hats, in the smaller ones the main features of the close-fitting cloche are retained, but much modified by means of high position crowns and upturned brims that reach a high peak at the front. They still remain cloches, however, with the downward trend over the ears and visored front. Very few turbans were noted.

We are led to believe that large hats are to contest the popularity of the small ones but that may be just a concession to elaborate gowns with which the hats must comport. In either case, wide brimmed or narrow, the crown fits the head snugly. Brims of the large hats are invariably flat though occasionally sliced off at various angles as a variation of the capeline.

A number of medium sized hats were a feature, too. Some of these were elaborate as to material, cloth of gold and lace. Mostly they served as foundations for lace veils ending in scarfs to be draped be-

Length of Skirts Adapted to Height of Wearer and the Occasion, First Night of the Style Show Reveals.

By Marguerite Martyn.

WHETHER skirts are to be long or short, wide or narrow; whether our arms are to be sheltered against next winter's winds or whether we must again shiver in our sleevelessness; whether our ears and eyebrows are still to be extinguished by the cloche or whether the popularity of the little bonnet really is on the wane—these and many other momentous questions upon which annually we womenfolk await the verdict of the Style Show, were settled last night.

Due to the fact that exhibitors in this spectacle must make the effort to outshine each other and keep the pace set by the dazzling background of the pageant, in which intravagant and extravagant know no bounds, a great many eccentricities and startling innovations are presented, which as authoritative styles must be accepted with a grain of salt. But through all the exaggerations, the discerning woman is able to trace the essential tendencies of the new modes. There were a number of survivals of the scarf fad which might reasonably be expected to have run its course, but like the use of beads, the scarf is employed with more reason and design than heretofore and in some connection with the costume with which it is worn rather than as a mere extension of any indication of a waist line. STATE TREASURER, ASKED TO VISIT BANK, SHOOTS SELF

Connecticut Official Is Cashier of Putnam Institution—Is Not Expected to Recover.

By the Associated Press.

PUTNAM, Conn., Aug. 8.—State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatrick, who shot himself at his home yesterday, after officers of the First National Bank of Putnam had called at his home, is urgently requesting him to come to the bank, of which he is cashier, was reported to be still in a critical condition at the Day-Kimball Hospital today.

A special meeting of the directors of the bank was called today to take action in any possible emergency.

Gilpatrick was alone in his home when Assistant Cashier Baker of the bank found him unconscious on the bed in a room on the second floor. A pistol was on the floor near by. A bullet wound was found in the right temple.

Deputy State Treasurer Thomas H. Judd of New Britain said that as far as the State finances were concerned, all accounts were in a satisfactory condition. S. M. Wheelock, brother-in-law of Gilpatrick, speaking for his relatives, declared that the shooting was a complete mystery to them.

Gilpatrick is serving his third term as State Treasurer. Besides his official position with the State and with the local bank, he is a director of a number of public utility companies in Kentucky and Michigan.

STATE 'DEFENSE DAY' BOARD

WILL MEET HERE ON PLANS

Arrangements for observance in

Special in the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 8.—

Arrangements for observance in

Missouri of "National Defense day," on Sept. 12, will be made at a meeting of the Special Committee appointed by Gov. Hyde, to be held at Hotel Jefferson in St. Louis early next week. The day has not been set aside by Adjutant-General

W. A. Raupp, chairman of the committee.

Members of the committee are

Raupp, Maj. E. N. Bowman, U. S.

Army, who is National Guard instructor in Missouri; Mayor Kiel of St. Louis, Mayor Beach of Kansas

City, Col. H. D. McBride of St.

Louis, Missouri Commander of the American Legion and A. L. Linweller of Jefferson City.

No definite plans have been worked out for Missouri's part in the mobilization of the country's defense powers, Raupp said today.

The National Guard troops will assemble at their home stations on that day. At points where communities declare a holiday and hold a celebration the troops will be assembled for the entire day,

but at points where no celebration

is held the guard companies will assemble at their armories only in the evening, Raupp said.

To add to the extent of the defense test it is proposed to have the various draft boards which functioned during the World War in session on Sept. 12, and patriotic citizens may visit the boards in the course of the day and go through the motions of registering for army service. No plans for an industrial mobilization or demonstration

have been made thus far, Raupp

said.

Detailed orders for the National Guard mobilization are being prepared and will be submitted to

Gov. Hyde for approval in advance of the committee meeting in St. Louis.

MILLER PONDERES ON FACT ANOTHER PRIMARY IS NEAR

His Chances to Defeat Mayor Kiel and Field of Competitors in Spring Look Good to Supporters.

While politicians are still looking for an explanation of the big vote cast in St. Louis, at Tuesday's primary, for Victor J. Miller for the Republican nomination for Governor, Miller himself is pondering on the fact that there will be another primary next spring, to be followed by an election for the office of Mayor.

Miller's city vote of 37,741 (unofficial figures) was within 674 of the combined vote of Hiram Lloyd, veteran and astute politician backed by most of the City Commission and Sam A. Baker, whose evident lead in the State attracted a considerable city following. His plurality over Lloyd was 1115.

What sort of a showing he might make next March against Mayor Kiel and the possible field of two or three other competitors, is not certain; but the chance looks good to some of Miller's supporters, and Miller seemed more inclined to smile than to frown as he contemplated it.

Miller Grateful for Vote.

There have even been suggestions that Miller should come out at once as an independent candidate for Governor. Miller's vote in the State has not been finally figured. While he had a large support in many counties, it is questionable how far that support would follow him as against the regular candidacy of Baker.

All that Miller had to say for publication today was: "I am deeply grateful to my friends for their support. The overwhelming vote of confidence given me by the people of St. Louis, my home city, will be cherished by me as long as I live."

Miller does not try to explain the vote he got in St. Louis; he seems to take it as a matter of course. The politicians to whom Miller's vote was a much bigger surprise than the defeat of Mayor Kiel's local favorites, have various explanations, all of a fragmentary sort, and none accounting for all phases of the Miller showing.

A leader of the Koeln forces said that Miller profited by the fact that he was not scratched on the slate of Koeln candidates. But it is also true that Miller was not named on that slate, which related only to local nominations. If Koeln had opposed Miller, the Miller vote might have been less; but it is difficult to figure that Koeln's neutrality caused anyone to vote for Miller who did not wish to do so.

Large Negro Vote.

A City Committee politician said: "It looks as if the City committee will have to start backing candidates that the people want, rather than those that the committee wants." However, there was no index, previously, as to the extent to which the people wanted Miller. Two years ago a candidate for City Collector backed by Miller made a poor showing.

Miller carried wards which have a large negro vote. This seems to show that stories connecting him with the Ku Klux Klan were not taken very seriously. Miller denied membership or connection with the Klan; but did not disavow that organization.

Miller's rigorous law enforcement policies, as head of the Police Board, is held by some to account for his lead in the Twenty-sixth, Twenty-eighth, Thirtieth and other residential wards. But he also carried the Fifth and Sixth, river wards.

In the Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eighth wards most of the parents of high school pupils, who two years ago censured Miller bitterly for his charges of school immorality. Many of these parents still hold that Miller went too far in his statements, and that the most shocking of his charges were not justified; but there was no organized opposition to Miller among the parents, and some of them are believed to have voted for him.

Ran Ahead in 18 Wards.

Gov. Hyde's action, in first causing the removal of Miller from the presidency of the board, and later removing him outright, seems to have won a sympathetic support for Miller from some of the Governor's opponents.

The 18 wards in which Miller ran ahead of Lloyd were the First, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth, Eleventh, Thirteenth to Seventeenth inclusive, Nineteenth to Twenty-fourth inclusive, Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eighth. In only the Fourth and Seventh wards did Baker lead Miller.

Your Pain May Be Neuritis

Many sufferers who are treating for rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago or sciatica are really afflicted with neuritis. This disease of the nerves causes pain, aches and soreness in different parts of the body, just like the ailments mentioned above.

The most common sources of neuritis are colds, injuries, bruises, infectious diseases of a nervous system. Long-standing cases of rheumatism or sciatica frequently attack the nerves, setting up inflammation and producing neuritis. No matter what its origin, neuritis is always accompanied by sharp, piercing pain, usually in the shoulder, forearm, neck, thigh, leg or back.

Don't bother with medicines that relieve for today only. Assist Nature to remove the causes of inflammation and pain by taking Euna Neuritis Tablets—a scientific treatment that has often brought lasting relief after other methods failed. Price $1.00.

Sold in St. Louis by Judge & Delph Drug Stores, Wolff-Weiss Drug Co. and all other leading druggists. Euna Neuritis Tablets, Euna Neuritis Tablets, Euna Neuritis Tablets.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Assertion that John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, was entitled to the indorsement of organized labor because of his attitude concerning foreign relations alone and outside of his record of service in behalf of labor, is made by William B. Wilson, former Secretary of Labor, in a letter to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The letter, made public here by the Democratic National Committee, is in reply to one from Mr. Gompers setting forth the grounds actuating the federation in indorsing the La Follette-Wheeler ticket.

In connection with the suggestion made in his previous letter to Gompers that the Executive Council of the federation defer action in the matter of indorsing candidates, Wilson said he had purposely used the plural in speaking of "letters of acceptance" to suggest that the council first hear the acceptance speech of President Coolidge, as the Republican nominee as well as that of Davis. Gompers said in his reply that he could not recommend to the council that it send a delegation to hear only the acceptance of Davis.

Wilson said he could not "suggest the attendance of any representative at President Coolidge's notification because I am not in a position to know whether or not that would be acceptable to the management of the Republican party."

Both La Follette and Davis are entitled to a "clean bill of health" from labor as to their record in domestic affairs, Wilson said in again reviewing the record of both. But the latter, he said, is entitled to labor's indorsement for his "attitude on foreign relations alone."

Council Declines to Publish Gompers-Davis Correspondence.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Ignoring requests contained in scores of telegrams, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, through Samuel Gompers, today refused to publish the correspondence which Gompers said last Wednesday had passed between himself and John W. Davis.

The council held it was up to Davis to make public his share of the correspondence, if he wished. Then the council would publish Gompers' communication to Davis. "It is Mr. Davis' move," said Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation and spokesman for the council. "He sent the first message. He sought the conference with Mr. Gompers. He requested Mr. Gompers, after he had been nominated, and the Democratic platform adopted, to submit to him a statement of questions in which labor was interested."

DR. HART, PRISON EXPERT, TO BE GUEST AT LUNCHEONWill Confer With Council Regarding City Jail Improvements.

Dr. Hastings H. Hart of the Russell Sage Foundation, New York City, will be the guest of the Board of Directors of the Missouri Welfare League at a luncheon at City Club at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Dr. Hart will stop in St. Louis Saturday and Sunday, en route to the American Prison Congress at Salt Lake City, Aug. 15 to 21, to confer with Director of Public Welfare Council regarding the completion of the fifth and sixth floors of the city jail. During a visit last January, Dr. Hart, an expert on prison systems, made a survey of the jail and recommended that the two upper floors be finished on the dormitory plan, to include living rooms, work and school rooms.

Under this plan the more easily managed prisoners will be allowed to occupy the upper floors under conditions far more attractive than those in the cell blocks. This form of prison housing has been successfully established in some Eastern cities, and it is expected that Dr. Hart's recommendations will be adopted by Director Culliff.

Miss Carol Bates, executive secretary, will represent the Missouri Welfare League at the Prison Congress.

Injury to His Spine.

A man found dazed and unable to tell his name was discovered by a policeman on a bench in O'Fallon Park, yesterday, and was identified at the city hospital as August 18th, 53, of Owensville, Mo., who was reported missing Sunday night. A physician notified the police of his disappearance from the home of Mrs. Fred Stump, 2125 Russell street, a sister of the man's wife, with whom they had been visiting. The man was unable to explain his actions in the interim. Examination by physicians disclosed an injury to the base of the spine, which, they said, might be attributed to his loss of memory. He was identified by his wife.

LABOR ATTACKS DAWES
AND CHURCH COUNCIL'S
'INDUSTRIAL REVIEW'Candidate Called Champion of 'Right of Judges to Do as They Please With Union Men.'

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 8.—Suspending the regular order of business, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor yesterday attacked the recently published "Industrial Review" of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

"American trade unionists," said a statement authorized by the labor council and issued yesterday by Matthew Woll, vice president, spokesman for Samuel Gompers, president, will regard the report of the Federal Council of Churches as a wholly unwarranted and presumptuous attempt to promote the waning fortunes of socialism in America.

It will be regarded as an attempt to create for the church organization a political leadership over labor on the part of a movement which should and must be content with spiritual leadership and with co-operation where service can be rendered in advancing the interests of the masses of the people.

Before issuing this statement the council announced that it did not want the impression created—because of the correspondence made public in which appeared the name of John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, that the Federation campaign would express itself in only one direction.

Formal attack on Dawes. Then the council issued a formal attack upon Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice presidential nominee. It called him champion of the "divine right of Judges to do as they please with union men."

Dawes was quoted as having said "Samuel Gompers and other trade union officials are most concerned about the right of union men to assault and murder peaceful citizens than about upholding the law of the land."

The comment of the executive council upon this quotation was, "no one, has made a more vicious and unwarranted declaration than this."

In the industrial report of the Federal Council of Churches the labor leaders resented particularly the assumption of authority and leadership which is there set forth in relation to labor and labor's participation in the political life of our republic.

This extract from the report is quoted: "A new chapter has begun in the political history of the American labor movement. Efforts made hitherto to form a labor party have been abortive. They have been opposed by the American Federation of Labor, the strongest single force in America, as contrary to the peculiar genius of the labor movement."

Church Report Assailed. The labor council's remarks concerning the extract were: "The American Federation of Labor has always welcomed every cooperating effort to improve the condition of the wage earners of our republic. It has never tolerated dictation over policies and actions by any force outside of the labor movement and such an attempted interference is no more welcome when it comes from one of the great church organizations of our country.

"We cannot and will not accept the imputation that while one definite policy is being pursued by the organized labor another is being covertly fostered. The American Federation of Labor has repeatedly declared its opposition to partisan political affiliation. It stands by that policy and is pursuing that policy."

The labor leaders attacked another section of the report of the Federal Council of Churches report where it was set forth that the socialists of Great Britain "have placed themselves in a position of leadership within the labor party," and it was predicted that immediately after the presidential election, "a party somewhat similar to the British Labor Party will be formed," with socialists playing much the same role that socialists play in the British labor party.

"Too ridiculous for consideration," declared the labor council's statement. "In this idea of domination of the American trade union movement in its political activity by a continuously diminishing and completely discredited socialist party."

"The socialist philosophy will never become the political or intellectual guide of American labor. The American Federation of Labor will be the leader of the labor movement, and this we intend to utilize as the time seems opportune."

"If Mr. Davis intends to favor labor and the farmer, as has been indicated by his attempt to interview Mr. Gompers and by William B. Wilson's appeal for an impossible delay in our endorsement of La Follette, we look forward to a similar maneuver for the Republican organization."

"It is not impossible that both sides may seek to recover some of their lost favor through the medium of acceptance of the labor movement. Efforts made hitherto to form a labor party have been abortive. They have been opposed by the American Federation of Labor, the strongest single force in America, as contrary to the peculiar genius of the labor movement."

NELSON AND BAKER
FACE DECISION ON PRESSING ISSUESNominees for Governorship Must Take Stand on Chairmanship and Attitude Toward K. K. K.

Sam A. Baker of Jefferson City, Republican, and Dr. Arthur W. Nelson of Bunton, Democrat, the nominees for the governorship of Missouri at the primary held Tuesday, have two pressing problems to solve.

Each must decide within a few days whom he will support for chairman of the State Committee of his party and each must decide whether to take a definite stand upon the Ku Klux Klan or to purport on that issue as each did during the primary campaign.

Both are arranging for conferences of the leaders of their respective parties to consider these matters.

Factional Movements. The chairmanship program must be mapped out first because movements to control their State Committees are getting under way among the factions of both parties. This control is closely interwoven with the selection of the two chairmen.

Under a statute enacted by the Legislature in 1921, members of the county committees throughout the State outside St. Louis will meet Tuesday, Aug. 13, to elect a chairman and a vice chairman, one of whom shall be a woman, and these two from each county, by virtue of their offices, will be members of the party congressional committee.

In St. Louis, members of the City Committee of each party, whose wards lie in the respective congressional districts, constitute the congressional committees for those districts.

On Tuesday, Aug. 26, the 16 congressional committees of each party will meet and elect two men and two women each as members of the state committees of the two parties. The state committees then will meet on Tuesday, Sept. 3, to elect the new state chairmen.

Drafting the Platform. Nominees of each party for State office, for both houses of the Legislature, for judgeships of the Circuit and Appellate Courts, and for members of Congress, will meet later in the same day in the city in which the State Committee meets, along with members of the State Committee, to draft the party platform.

In the Republican party the election of a new chairman is imperative, because Dr. E. H. Clements of Macomb, the present chairman, has been elected Republican National Committeeman from Missouri and no longer can fulfill the duties of State Chairman.

In general election years, when there is no race for United States Senator, the voice of the party nominee for Governor always carries great weight in the selection of a State chairman, though when it runs counter to the wishes of a majority of the party leaders it is disregarded.

National Committeeman Clements said today that he has no candidate for the chairmanship.

"My only requirement," said Clements, "is that the new chairman be a good Republican, who is not a factionalist, and who is supposed to be enough to conduct an effective campaign, and who is so situated as to effect harmony where harmonizing is needed. I won't have any suggestion until we hear from Baker."

Three Names Suggested. Baker said today that he had not made a decision yet as to whom he will support, and Gov. Hyde and Dr. Cortes E. Hughes, secretary of the State Board of Health, who was Baker's campaign manager, said that they were waiting to hear from Baker.

Three names are suggested, however, from authoritative sources, as under consideration for the chairmanship. One is Enloe himself, because of his close and effective relation to the Baker primary campaign.

Enloe severed his connection with the Board of Health, however, there doubtless would be vigorous opposition to his taking the place, because the board is supposed to be kept aloof from politics, though like most other positions of that sort, it is largely only a suggestion. His candidacy would meet vigorous opposition, however.

Ben C. Hyde of Kansas City, brother of the Governor and State Superintendent of Insurance, who like most of the other higher Hyde officials was active in Baker's campaign, also has been suggested.

Hyde, because of his business situation in Kansas City, doubtless could raise a sizeable campaign fund, which will be in his favor.

More likely than either of the others, however, is the probability that James E. Finch of New Madrid, formerly State Oil Inspector, long active in State politics and a power in Southeast Missouri, will be the choice.

Finch was active behind Baker, has been one of the Governor's trusted advisers throughout his

It will be regarded as an attempt to create for the church organization a political leadership over labor on the part of a movement which should and must be content with spiritual leadership and with co-operation where service can be rendered in advancing the interests of the masses of the people.

Before issuing this statement the council announced that it did not want the impression created—because of the correspondence made public in which appeared the name of John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, that the Federation campaign would express itself in only one direction.

Formal attack on Dawes. Then the council issued a formal attack upon Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice presidential nominee. It called him champion of the "divine right of Judges to do as they please with union men."

Dawes was quoted as having said "Samuel Gompers and other trade union officials are most concerned about the right of union men to assault and murder peaceful citizens than about upholding the law of the land."

The comment of the executive council upon this quotation was, "no one, has made a more vicious and unwarranted declaration than this."

In the industrial report of the Federal Council of Churches the labor leaders resented particularly the assumption of authority and leadership which is there set forth in relation to labor and labor's participation in the political life of our republic.

This extract from the report is quoted: "A new chapter has begun in the political history of the American labor movement. Efforts made hitherto to form a labor party have been abortive. They have been opposed by the American Federation of Labor, the strongest single force in America, as contrary to the peculiar genius of the labor movement."

Church Report Assailed. The labor council's remarks concerning the extract were: "The American Federation of Labor has always welcomed every cooperating effort to improve the condition of the wage earners of our republic. It has never tolerated dictation over policies and actions by any force outside of the labor movement and such an attempted interference is no more welcome when it comes from one of the great church organizations of our country.

"We cannot and will not accept the imputation that while one definite policy is being pursued by the organized labor another is being covertly fostered. The American Federation of Labor has repeatedly declared its opposition to partisan political affiliation. It stands by that policy and is pursuing that policy."

The labor leaders attacked another section of the report of the Federal Council of Churches report where it was set forth that the socialists of Great Britain "have placed themselves in a position of leadership within the labor party," and it was predicted that immediately after the presidential election, "a party somewhat similar to the British Labor Party will be formed," with socialists playing much the same role that socialists play in the British labor party.

"Too ridiculous for consideration," declared the labor council's statement. "In this idea of domination of the American trade union movement in its political activity by a continuously diminishing and completely discredited socialist party."

"The socialist philosophy will never become the political or intellectual guide of American labor. The American Federation of Labor will be the leader of the labor movement, and this we intend to utilize as the time seems opportune."

"If Mr. Davis intends to favor labor and the farmer, as has been indicated by his attempt to interview Mr. Gompers and by William B. Wilson's appeal for an impossible delay in our endorsement of La Follette, we look forward to a similar maneuver for the Republican organization."

"It is not impossible that both sides may seek to recover some of their lost favor through the medium of acceptance of the labor movement. Efforts made hitherto to form a labor party have been abortive. They have been opposed by the American Federation of Labor, the strongest single force in America, as contrary to the peculiar genius of the labor movement."

AND CHURCH COUNCIL'S
'INDUSTRIAL REVIEW'Candidate Called Champion of 'Right of Judges to Do as They Please With Union Men.'

By the Associated Press.
ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 8.—Suspending the regular order of business, the executive council of the American Federation of Labor yesterday attacked the recently published "Industrial Review" of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

"American trade unionists," said a statement authorized by the labor council and issued yesterday by Matthew Woll, vice president, spokesman for Samuel Gompers, president, will regard the report of the Federal Council of Churches as a wholly unwarranted and presumptuous attempt to promote the waning fortunes of socialism in America.

It will be regarded as an attempt to create for the church organization a political leadership over labor on the part of a movement which should and must be content with spiritual leadership and with co-operation where service can be rendered in advancing the interests of the masses of the people.

Before issuing this statement the council announced that it did not want the impression created—because of the correspondence made public in which appeared the name of John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, that the Federation campaign would express itself in only one direction.

WOLL REPLIES TO NEW YORK WORLD

Says Labor Indorsed La Follette and Wheeler as "Matter of Cold Logic."

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch, NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The New York World prints the following Atlantic City dispatch:

Matthew Woll, spokesman for the American Federation of Labor, during the centenary of Samuel Gompers, has made a reply to the New York World's editorial, "Labor Strikes Its Tent," in Thursday morning's issue, in the course of which he attacked Walter Lippman, chief editorial writer of the World.

The statement of Mr. Woll, after attacking the report of the Research Bureau of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America on labor's political future, says:

"One other kind of attempted guidance from the outside is found in an editorial in the New York World this morning, presumably written by Mr. Walter Lippman, its chief editorial writer, who ranks high in the councils of what has come to be a cult of assumed intellectual leadership in New York City."

"Mr. Lippman writes about 'Mr. Gompers' machine of veterans' and their 'defensive against the rising strength of younger members.' Mr. Gompers is said to be 'beaten' in his own organization on a fundamental question of policy."

"'Clever juxtaposition of words.' 'Mr. Lippman seemingly knows much more about arranging a clever juxtaposition of words than he knows about facts. It is not to single him out for the dignity of comment, but to point to his utterances as an example of a type, that his utterance is selected for correction."

"It is because of the indorsement of Senator La Follette that Mr. Lippman brings forth his disapproved 'diagnosis.' The cult is driven to desperation in the quest for any reason but the real reason in accounting for that indorsement. Democrats and those who also serve in the Democratic ranks find it particularly difficult to understand why Mr. La Follette was indorsed. Republicans, equally unacceptable to labor, nevertheless, more readily accept the real reason."

"The platform and candidates of both these parties are unacceptable and the indorsement of Senator La Follette and Wheeler followed as a matter of cold logic. That this was foreseen by President Gompers, whose political acumen has been made manifest on more occasions than some politicians like to remember, is shown by the fact that at the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Cincinnati, in June, 1932, President Gompers introduced Senator La Follette to that convention in a manner that unquestionably was intended to present him as the champion of labor's cause in 1934."

Writings of Intellectuals.
"It was there that Senator La Follette's present campaign may truly be said to have been launched. In view of facts which most labor men know, the wringings of labor's opponents and intellectual saviors are highly amusing."

"American Labor is neither divided nor in revolt. This may be very disappointing to Mr. Lippman, in the whole cult of self-confessed intellectual supremacy, to pacifists, revolutionists and reactionaries alike, but it is more true than ever in our history. Let them all look to the idea of November."

(The editorial in question was written by Mr. Lippman.)

"CODE OF ETHICS" FOR ILLINOIS PROHIBITION AGENTS

Must Not Use Lodge Signs to Trap Brothel Members, Nor Drink Too Freely.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—A "code of ethics" for Illinois prohibition agents, which, among other things, prohibits them from giving the sign of distress to a lodge brother as a preliminary to purchasing liquor from him, have been issued by Maj. Percy Owen, Prohibition Director.

In the list of "don'ts" agents are asked to refrain from becoming intoxicated when obtaining evidence; from feigning sickness to buy from drugstore; from making bootleggers, saloon keepers and rum runners their associates and customers.

and barrooms their lounging place when off duty, and from using evidence obtained because the sale was made on the ground that the offender is an old friend of the agent.

After taking two or three drinks of high-proof liquor, an agent is advised to allow five to seven minutes to elapse before taking another. Agents may use any disguises considered necessary. They should keep diaries in which drawings are to be made of locations where violations are found.

Gun play is especially cautioned against. There are times when a display of firearms is necessary. Maj. Owens said, but nothing is to be gained, in his opinion, by turning a machine gun on a suspected

Anyone Now Can Have Pretty Curls and Waves

Hair brushed with the hot curling iron is bound to become dry, harsh and brittle, as so many know from sad experience. It's far more sensible to use the simple silicone method, which can go on hair and which produces a curliness much prettier and more natural in appearance. And the effect lasts much longer, particularly in hot, moist or windy weather. Silicone is also a fine dressing for the hair, preserving its texture and health, keeping it delightfully soft and pliant.

Liquid silicone is not sticky or greasy and it won't stain or streak hair or scalp. Get a few ounces from the drugstore, pour a little into a saucer and with a finger brush it gently over the hair just before doing it up. The added glory to your "curling story" will be quite remarkable.

LA FOLLETTE IN LETTER, ASSAILS K. K. K. BY NAME

"I Am Unalterably Opposed to Its Evident Purposes," He Says; "It Cannot Survive."

QUOTES LINCOLN AND JEFFERSON

Asserts, However, That He Will Try to Hold Attention of Voters to Economic Issue.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The Ku Klux Klan is unqualifiedly denounced by name in a letter written by Senator La Follette, independent candidate for the presidency, to Robert P. Scripps of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, and made public here today by the La Follette-Wheeler headquarters. The publication of the letter bears out the prophecy made in this correspondence a short time ago, that La Follette would take an early opportunity to declare his opposition to the Klan and thus repair a notable omission in the platform of the Cleveland progressive conference.

La Follette's statement is the first declaration of the Klan by name in the personal or party platform of any of the major candidates for the presidency.

"I am unalterably opposed to the evident purposes of the secret organization known as the Ku Klux Klan, as disclosed by its public acts," he writes. "It cannot long survive—it is my opinion that such a movement is foredoomed. It has within its own body the seeds of its death."

Quoting Lincoln Letter.
La Follette quotes from a letter written by Lincoln in 1855, denouncing the proscription of negroes, foreigners and Catholics by the "Know-Nothing" party, and from a statement by Thomas Jefferson upholding the principle of religious freedom.

Upon these statements and upon his own views, La Follette adds that he is "content to stand with our constitution and our laws." While thus laying the Klan, La Follette seizes the occasion to denounce the raising of a religious issue in the campaign and to reiterate his contention that the "all-embracing" issue is economic.

La Follette's Letter.
His letter, under date of Aug. 3, follows in full:

"Dear Mr. Scripps:
"Your letter of Aug. 1 received. You ask where I stand on the Ku Klux Klan. Similar inquiries have come to me from others. I take the liberty of making my answer to you public. This will inform all those interested in knowing my attitude on this question."

"But first and before all else, I am bound to say that in my view the dominant, all-embracing issue in this campaign is to break the combined power of the private monopoly system over the political and economic life of the American people."

"The power controls every important branch of industry—mining, manufacturing and transportation. It controls markets and credit and dictates the price of every product necessary to feed, clothe, warm and shelter the human family. To control that which sustains life is to control life itself. This is economic slavery. Free government cannot long exist side by side with economic despotism."

"To this issue, in so far as I am able, I shall hold the attention of the voters of this country. From this position I shall not be turned aside."

"Hence, I deem it most unfortunate that questions involving religious opinion and other questions unrelated to the vital issues of the restoration of government to the people, have been raised in this so-called history. Such controversies feed upon and inflame prejudice and tend to the extinction of issues involving the very life of government itself."

"This brings me to say in response to your inquiry as to my stand on the Ku Klux Klan that I have met this question in various forms during my public life. Unalterably Opposed to K. K. K."

"Anyone familiar with my record, especially in my own State, knows that I have always stood without reservation against any discrimination between races, classes and creeds. I hold that every citizen is entitled to the full exercise of his constitutional rights."

"I am unalterably opposed to the evident purposes of the secret organization known as the Ku Klux Klan, as disclosed by its public acts. It cannot long survive."

"Relying upon the sound judgment of the voters, I am confident that the Ku Klux Klan will be crushed."

By CHARLES G. ROSS,

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The Ku

clared by Senator La Follette, independent candidate for the presidency, to Robert P. Scripps of the Scraper-Howard newspapers, and made public here today by the La

The publication of the letter hearts out the prophecy made in this correspondence a short time ago, that La Follette would take an early opportunity to declare his opposition to the Klan and thus repair a notable omission in the platform of the Cleveland progressive conference.

La Follette's statement is the first expression of the Klan by name in the personal or party platform of any of the major candidates for the presidential election.

"I am unalterably opposed to the end purposes of the secret organization known as the Ku Klux Klan, as disclosed by its public acts," he writes. "It cannot long survive—it is my opinion that such a movement is foredoomed. It has within its own body the seeds of its death."

Quotes Lincoln Letter.

La Follette quotes from a letter written by Lincoln in 1855, declaring the prohibition of negroes, foreigners and Catholics by the know-nothing party, and from a statement by Thomas Jefferson upholding the principle of religious freedom.

"Upon these statements and upon his own views, La Follette adds that he is 'content to stand without qualification or evasion.'"

While thus flaying the Klan, La Follette edges the occasion to deprecate the raising of a religious issue in the campaign and to reiterate his contention that the "all-embracing" issue is economic.

La Follette's Letter.

His letter, under date of Aug. 5, follows in full:

"Dear Mr. Scripps: New York City.

"Your letter of Aug. 1 received.
You ask where I stand on the Ku Klux Klan. Similar inquiries have come to me from others. I take the liberty of making my answer to you public. This will inform all those interested in knowing my attitude on this question.

"But first and before all else, I am bound to say that in my view
the dominant, all-embracing issue
in this campaign is to break the combined power of the private monopoly system over the political and economic life of the American people.

"This power controls every important branch of industry—mining, manufacturing and transportation. It controls markets and credits and dictates the price of every product necessary to feed, clothe,
shelter and shelter the human family. To control that which sustains life is to control life itself. This is economic slavery. Free government cannot long exist side by side with economic despotism.

"To this issue, in so far as I am able, I shall hold the attention of the voters of this country. From this position I shall not be turned aside.

"Hence, I deem it most unfortunate that questions involving religious opinion and other questions unrelated to the vital issue of the restoration of government to the people have been raised in this as in other critical years of our national history. Such controversies fed upon and inflame prejudice and passion to the exclusion of issues involving the very life of government itself.

sponse to your inquiry as to my

"HONESTY IN GOVERNMENT THE CHIEF ISSUE," SAYS
DAVIS IN PICNIC SPEECH

Defines Republican as One Who Wants Record
of His Party Forgotten—Smith Declares
'We Will Treat 'Em Rough.'

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug.
8.—The Dutchess County Democrats' basket picnic in the Hudson River driving park grounds here marked the real opening of the national and State Democratic campaigns.

John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential nominee, while precluded from an extended discussion of the issues because of his
has not yet received formal notification of his nomination, said enough to make it clear that he regards as the main issue of the forthcoming fight the responsibility of the Republican party for the leadership during the last four years.

He showed also his determination that the Republicans should escape that issue by attempting to pooh-pooh the enormity of the scandals of the Republican national administration or to divert public attention from Republican responsibility by a flood of political platitudes.

Next to Davis, interest of the 2000 Democrats gathered from Dutchess and Ulster counties centered on Gov. Smith, who elaborated the view of the main issues indicated by Davis, and who added that he did not propose that New York Republicans should escape responsibility for their refusal,
through the Republican party, to give the State the benefit of the progressive legislative program which he has urged.

Honesty the Issue.

When Davis started to speak his voice was drowned by the cheers of his hearers. When he was able to make himself heard he said,
in part:

"I am precluded from a political speech by the fact that I have not yet been formally notified of my nomination as your leader. I am able to say, however, that the outstanding issue of the national campaign will be the necessity for a return to honesty in our Government.

"I can think of no better example of this principle in American public life than that offered by the splendid services of Gov. Smith in this State. Not only has he offered an example for every American by his honesty in private life, but in public office he has been a credit to himself and an honor to this State.

"A Democrat is one who wants
the record of his party revealed,
and a Republican is one who wants
it forgotten. I join with Gov.
Smith in urging that you see that there is no failing memory in that direction."

Davis also paid a tribute to Franklin D. Roosevelt, who was the informal host of the picnic.

Gov. Smith's Speech.

Gov. Smith received an ovation rivaling that given to the presidential candidate.

"It is pretty hot weather for politics," he said, "but inasmuch as this is a campaign in which we intend to treat 'em rough, a little heat and good sense of our people,
it is my opinion that such a movement is foredoomed. It has within its own body the seeds of its death."

"Abraham Lincoln, nearly 70 years ago, set forth his views on this question in a letter to his friend, Mr. Joshua P. Speed, dated Springfield, Ill., Aug. 4, 1855:

"You inquire where I now stand. That is a disputed point.
I think I am a Whig; but others say there are no Whigs, and that I am an abolitionist. I am not a Know-Nothing; that is certain.
How could I be? How can anyone who abhors the oppression of negroes be in favor of degrading classes of white people? Our progress appears to me to be pretty rapid. As a nation we began by declaring that all men are created equal. We now practically read it 'all men are created equal except negroes.' When the Know-Nothings got control, it will read 'all men are created equal except negroes and foreigners and Catholics.' When it comes to this I shall prefer emigrating to some country where they make no pretense of loving liberty—to Russia, for instance,
where despotism can be taken pure, and without the base alloy of hypocrisy."

A LINCOLN.

Cites View of Jefferson.

"With this statement from Abraham Lincoln I would join also a passage from a letter written by Thomas Jefferson to Edward Downes in 1820:

"I never will, by word of act,
bow to the shrine of intolerance,
or admit a right of inquiry into the religious opinions of others."

"Upon these statements of Jefferson and Lincoln, expressing the sentiments which I am happy to

A STEP toward the establish-was taken yesterday afternoon when the heads of the German and French delegations exchanged courtesy calls.

In significant as this exchange
might seem, the fact that it was made is considered as indicating decided progress toward the better spirit which it is hoped the Dawes plan will promote.

Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann first went to the French delegation's hotel, where they were received by Premier Herriot. The Germans then returned to their hotel and presently their call was returned by M. Herriot, who re-

Great Advances Made in

PRACTITIONER WILL

THE LAWS OF HEALTH

By the Associated Press.
TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 8.—Sir David C. Bruce, president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, yesterday delivered the inaugural address to the association, now in convention in this city. The best treatment for disease is found in preventive measures, while giving a setback to many branches of investigation, provided a stimulus along other lines which resulted in a complete understanding of certain troublesome diseases, and the providing of knowledge which would not have been obtained in many years under normal conditions; and finally, he drew attention to the enormous toll which disease still exacts in diminishing human efficiency and shortening human lives, showing how ignorance and indifference are in a large measure responsible for this economic loss, and prophesying
that with redoubled efforts, science
will eventually eliminate this waste.

A Public Duty.

Drawing attention to the prevalence of disease in civilized countries, the speaker said: "The medical practitioner of the future must frequently examine people while they are apparently well, in order to detect any incipient departure from the normal, and to teach and urge modes of living conformable
to the laws of personal health, and the public health authorities must see to it that the environment in accordance with scientific teaching."

"It may be a long time before the change is widely accepted, but already enormous advances have been effected."

"It is one of the first duties of those in power to see that their people have, in addition to houses with plenty of light and air, a good water supply and a good drainage system, and money cannot be spent to better advantage than in the attainment of these three essentials to health."

The speaker then described the successes of measures taken during the great war to protect troops
from typhoid fever, and continued: "Similar success is reported in the use of diphtheria sera among the civilian population, but preventive measures against the disease are now coming into vogue.
The procedure employed is to bring about an active immunization by a mixture of toxin and antitoxin in small quantities which have been shown to be innocuous by a specific test."

The Greatest Scourge.

Drawing attention to the unsatisfactory state of knowledge surrounding tuberculosis, Sir David said: "Tuberculosis, distributed over the whole world, is one of the greatest scourges of civilized communities. It has been known from time immemorial, but it is only within recent years that the bacterial cause has been recognized." Dr. Bruce paid eloquent tribute to the brilliant researches of Koch, a fellow student, who worked out the part played by bacteria in tuberculosis.

"Tuberculosis, however, appears to be mainly a disease of environment. Its birthplace is the sunlit, ill-ventilated, overcrowded room. Its prevention is fundamentally dependent on the provision of better environment and the education of the people in physiological hygiene. Builders of new cities should keep ever in mind the aim of 'no tuberculosis.' Mankind was born into air and sunlight; but these are more than his heritage;
they are the irreducible conditions of life. Figures were quoted which show how the death rate from all forms of tuberculosis has been gradually brought down. That the co-operation of all forces in all nations would eventually result in the tubercle bacillus being brought under control, and

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 8.— Ousted by impeachment from the highest State office and then nominated at the next primary election for the highest Federal office,
a State can give one of its citizens
the experience of John Calloway Walton—an experience he has lied to be without parallel in American politics.

Following a short and tempestuous term in the Governor's chair,
Walton was impeached last November, the charges against him involving corruption in office, wilful neglect of duty, incompetency and moral turpitude. He started his effort at a political come-back several months later, announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the United States senatorship. He charged that his impeachment had been "framed"
and that it was largely the result of the bitter fight he had waged against the Ku Klux Klan.

In his campaign he said he recognized the Ku Klux as "the only issue" and denounced it in all his speeches.

Returns from Tuesday's primary
show that he has won the nomination by a plurality of more than 7500 over his nearest opponent, E.
B. Howard, endorsed by the Ku Klux Klan.

Walton's Republican opponent in the November election will be W.
B. Pine, Oklahoma oil millionaire, who led his ticket more than two to one. Pine had the endorsement of the Klan and in the coming campaign it is expected to be the predominant issue, with the party lines relegated to the background.

His Political Career.

Born in Arkansas in 1881, Walton came to Oklahoma in 1904. He made his home in Oklahoma City
and his first public office was that of Commissioner of Public Works
of this city, being elected in 1918.
He resigned in 1919 to make the race for Mayor. "He was elected."

The Governor's chair was the next goal of his ambitions. He met the race on the Democratic ticket in 1922, with a platform of the Farmer-Labor Reconstruction League. The campaign was bitter. Many old line Democrats opposed Walton, defending him with radicalism. But Walton gained the nomination by a majority, receiving most of his support from the farmer and labor elements. In the election he defeated John Fields, a Republican opponent, although he trailed his ticket by several thousand votes.

He was inaugurated Jan. 8, 1923,
amid ceremonies unprecedented in Oklahoma history. A gigantic barbecue at the State fair grounds, attended by approximately 100,000
persons, was one feature.

One of his first acts as Governor was to submit to the Legislature a comprehensive program looking to betterment of conditions among farmers and laborers. Many of his proposals were incorporated in the laws.

He then turned his attention to the State educational institutions and created the Board of Education
by reorganizing the Board of Education. He declared martial law in several counties where mob rule had been most active and finally defeated military rule over the entire State, declaring that "a state of rebellion and insurrection
held sway in Oklahoma."

Military courts were placed in the offices of certain newspapers, military courts were set up and the Oklahoma City Police Department taken over by the military.
A group of State representatives circulated a call for a special session of the House to consider his actions. One attempted meeting of the House was dispersed with riot charges made by the National Guard, acting under Walton's orders.

At a special election Oct. 3 a proposed constitutional amendment empowering the Legislature to meet without call by the Governor was placed on the ballot.

G. O. P. CHIEFS UNEASY OVER STUMP CAMPAIGN

They Fear Coolidge's Defects as Speaker and Are Concerned Over Davis' Oratory.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Various Republican campaign strategists are already growing nervous over the effect on public sentiment when President Coolidge's opponents begin their active campaigning.

It has been tacitly understood that Mr. Coolidge was to stay in Washington throughout the campaign, making as few speeches as possible and appearing to be too engrossed with affairs of the nation to give much attention to politics.

Virtually all Republican leaders had agreed that this would achieve the best psychological effect. It had been proposed that Mr. Coolidge occasionally appoint some committee or make some move to attract attention, but without forcing him to present himself in person to the public.

To this end the idea has been receiving for weeks to have him call a conference of Governors or otherwise initiate a general movement for reduction of State and local taxes. This, it was felt, would be universally popular and would achieve greater benefits politically than almost any other enterprise.

But the approaching day when John W. Davis is to take the stump has begun to stir into the minds of the strategists. The Democrats count on Davis' strong personality and power as a speaker to win public sentiment. La Follette's counselors expect similar results from him.

G. O. P. Managers Uneasy.
Campaign managers are already wondering whether the wheel-horse orators of the G. O. P. can effectively substitute for Mr. Coolidge in retrieving captured ground. On the other hand, they fear to let the President take the stump because of his defects as a speaker and in those attributes of personality that appeal popularly.

Concern of Republican campaign managers is increased by the difficulty in assembling the "advisory committee" invented after the Cleveland convention to appease Secretary Slem and others who were threatening to resign from the chairman Butler's cabinet. It is more than a month since the committee was "recreated" and it has not yet found any members.

Will Hays was mentioned as one who would be immediately drafted for the job, but he has declined, saying he was too busy. Some outstanding Republicans have been invited but have discovered that business or other engagements would prevent their acceptance.

Speeches in West Suggested.
A group of Western Senators is insisting that Mr. Coolidge make a real fight to keep the insurgent Northwest from flocking to La Follette but as yet nothing has been done about meeting the La Follette assault. Suggestions are coming from local Republican organizations in the West that the President come out there for speeches. His advisers are finding it embarrassing to contrive plausible excuses for declining.

Reports keep coming in that Hiram Johnson is going to jump on the La Follette bandwagon and try to take California with him. Not a word has been extracted from Johnson, however, whose silence has been growing more and more torturing to the Coolidge camp.

Mr. Coolidge has completed and sent to the printers his speech of acceptance. It will be delivered next Thursday.

Coolidge May Take Vacation.
Proposals for a short vacation after President Coolidge's immediate duties for the formal notification exercises here Aug. 14, were among topics discussed today by the President. No decision was reached.

While Mr. Coolidge has been withstanding well the intense heat which has prevailed here for the week, his friends for some time have urged him to take a respite from the duties which have kept him close to his desk since he entered office a year ago.

It is considered like the President will go to New England for about two weeks if he decides in favor of a vacation. In the past he has gone each summer to his father's home at Plymouth, Vt., and he was there last August when President Harding died.

MUSIC HALL GIRLS WILL AID ICE FUND

Members of Cast at Liberty Theater Will Appear in Vaudeville Next Tuesday.

Among the attractions which will prove additional magnets to draw crowds to the elaborate vaudeville show at Forest Park Highlands next Tuesday night for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Free Ice Fund will be 18 pretty girls from the Liberty Music Hall through courtesy of Joe Brown, manager of the Oscar Dane Entertainment Studios. The boys of the De Molay are sponsoring the affair.

Miss Lillian Bell Brown, baritone, the Lavin Sisters in singing and dancing numbers, Burtie Bierman and Donna Monroe will be on the program along with the numerous regular attractions of the "big place on the hill."

Members of the Sentinel and St. Louis chapters of the De Molay have been actively engaged in the advance ticket sale during the past 10 days and an overflow crowd should attend if the weather is favorable. Admission charges are 15 cents and the entire proceeds of the advance ticket sale, together with a generous percentage of the gate receipts on Tuesday night and returns from the concessions will go to the fund for the babies.

The Post-Dispatch Ice Fund has lagged seriously this season and a severe curtailment of its work for the balance of the season will be necessary if the necessary money is not forthcoming. It is hoped that Tuesday night's affair under the auspices of the boys of the De Molay will add substantially to the fund for the babies.

THIRD SUDDEN DEATH IN MILTENBERGER FAMILY IN YEAR

Widow of Retired Banker Succumbs Suddenly of Heart Disease at Her Home.

Mrs. Ellen Clendenin Miltenberger, 5666 Cabanne avenue, widow of Henry Bryan Miltenberger, a retired banker, died suddenly at her home at 3 p. m. yesterday of heart disease. It was the third sudden death in the family within a year. On May 27 last, her husband who was a member of one of St. Louis' oldest families and for many years connected with the Merchants-Lafayette National Bank, collapsed and died in his chair while attending a baseball game at Sportman's Park, and a short time before that her son, Elliot, was killed in an explosion at Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Miltenberger had been in ill health for several months. She is survived by a son and daughter, George Kerr Miltenberger and Mrs. Eugenia Ustick. The funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today in the Presbyterian church at Ferguson, Mo. Burial will be in Ferguson.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—A negro watchman was reported missing, and five firemen were injured when flames swept the coconut plant of the Gorgas-Pierrie Manufacturing Co. early today and damaged the adjoining plant of the Bissell Linseed Oil Co. PLAN OUTLINED FOR MERGER OF FIVE RAILWAYS Consolidations Made by Harriman and Gould Outdone in Proposed Nickel Plate System.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The largest railroad merger in history, involving combined capitalization of more than $1,500,000,000 and close to 11,000 miles of line, was outlined last night by bankers associated with Orvis P. and Mantle J. Van Sweringen of Cleveland, owners of the Nickel Plate system. The consolidation, outrivalling anything done in the days of E. H. Harriman or Jay Gould, calls for the formation of a new company and the absorption of four railroads by the New York, Chicago & St. Louis. Control is to be exercised through exchange of stock and through lease of physical properties. The railroads to be combined include the New York, Chicago & St. Louis (Nickel Plate), the Erie, the Pere Marquette, the Chesapeake & Ohio, and the Hocking Valley. Close to 90 per cent of Hocking Valley stock is controlled by the Chesapeake & Ohio. I. C. C. Must Approve. The proposed combination is subject to approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Terms of exchange of stock have been agreed to by the larger stockholders of each of the properties involved, and no obstacle is in sight. Following action of the various boards of directors to be called immediately to voice their approval of the terms, a former offer will be made to stockholders some time this month. Plans for Stock Exchange. The general terms to be offered to present stockholders of the roads involved is understood to be as follows: For Erie first and second preferred stocks, 50 per cent in preferred of the new company; for Erie common, 40 per cent of common in the new company. For Pere Marquette preferred, 90 per cent in new preferred, giving these stockholders 6.40 per cent return against the present 5 per cent dividends; for Pere Marquette common, 85 per cent of new common. Prior preferred of the Pere Marquette is to get 100 per cent of new preferred stock. For Chesapeake & Ohio 6 1/2 per cent preferred giving 6.90 per cent return against the existing limit of 6.50 per cent; for Chesapeake & Ohio common, 55 per cent in new 6 per cent preferred and 55 per cent in new common, holders thereby receiving, based on 6 per cent dividends on the new common, 6.60 per cent a year against the existing 4 per cent. For Hocking Valley common, 50 per cent in new 6 per cent preferred and 50 per cent in new common, giving 5 per cent a year instead of 4 per cent as at present. The first Van Sweringen railroad purchase was the Nickel Plate in 1916, then doing the unprofitable freight hauls of the New York Central in order to leave the main four-to-six track system clear for the big money. The next Van Sweringen purchase was two more similar lines strung out in the territory around Lake Erie—the Clover Leaf and Lake Erie & Western. These were welded into the Nickel Plate system. St. Louis to Seaboard. The next was a real railroad—the Chesapeake & Ohio, carrying control of the Hocking Valley, both notable among the coal-carrying systems of the territory east of the Mississippi. With the acquisition of Pere Marquette and the Erie, the Van Sweringen brothers have achieved what seems to be only an immediate aim—the creation of a great railroad system stretching its network of lines from the important gateways of the west—Chicago, St. Louis and Peoria—to the Atlantic seaboard and rivaling in point of mileage the leading carriers in the territory. Rise of Van Sweringens. The story of the rise of these Cleveland magnates reads like Horatio Alger or Oliver Optic. Both started as newspaper boys. The first sold papers on the streets of Geneva, 40 miles east of Cleveland. Today, worth many millions of dollars, they both are under 45. Orvis is 42, Mantle 41. Family circumstances never permitted either boy to have other than a common school education. But by diligent reading and through the school of experience they dug out an education for themselves. Their mother died soon after the family moved to Cleveland. Orvis and Mantle obtained work as office boys. Later they entered the employ of a real estate company and thus found opportunity to invest their savings. One day they acquired 2000 acres in what is now known as the Shaker Heights district, for from the settled residential district of the city, and asked the Cleveland railroad company to extend its tracks. When this was refused they borrowed money and built a line of their own, with the result that city cars run straight to the property.

To make the story short, they cut out lots, built streets and sold the property in bits at enormous prices. The deal made the Van Sweringens wealthy and led to eventual purchase of the old Nickel Plate.

Is PYORRHEA DESTROYING YOUR TEETH AND APPEARANCE?

Pyorrhea is a disease of the gums which often results in a complete loss of teeth, appearance and even health itself. It is caused by a germ which enters the mouth through the nose and settles in the gum pockets. It is a disease which can be cured easily. BERLIN penetrates into the gum pockets and root sockets and there destroys all forms of bacteria. No unusual is its action that improves the mouth almost at once. Bleeding stops, the soft, spongy, inflamed gums become firm, healthy and pink—there is no longer the constant flow of pus at the tooth margin, no foul, offensive breath of pyorrhea is at once overcome and the humiliating consequences of possessing an unsightly unsatisfactory mouth disappear. But we do not ask you to take our word for these results. If, however, after a 20-day two-bottle treatment BERLIN does not cure the pyorrhea claimed, your money will be refunded. VANGILDER PITCHES THREE-HIT GAME BUT SISLER'S MEN LOSE TWICE

Home Runs by Lamar and Hauser Ruin Fine Hurling Effort of Right-Hander

One of Three Sateties Made Off St. Louisan Tainted—Kolp and Three Other Mound City Flingers Fail in Opening Game of Double Bill With Athletics.

By Dent McKimmin.
Is the value of the home-run hitter over-estimated? Is the homage paid by baseball fans to the big sluggers mis-directed hero-worship? One would think not, after seeing the Philadelphia Athletics, held to three hits by Vangilder, beat the Browns on two home-runs in the second game of yesterday's double-header.

Joe Hauser's home run in the first inning of the first game, with two men on base, gave the Athletics a three-run lead which was never lost and drove Ray Kolp out of the game.

Hauser by Hauser and Lamar in the second game transformed a brilliant performance by Vangilder into a defeat.

One of the three hits off Vangilder was an easy roller which took a bad bounce and caromed off Sisler's shoulder. Thus, "Van" permitted only two real hits and lost the game.

Brown obtained five hits in the second game but not one of them was for extra bases and as a result they were beaten. Their defeat in the first game was not due to any mysterious circumstance. They couldn't hit young Sam Gray and their own second-string pitchers were hopelessly ineffective.

In the first contest they lost by a score of 7 to 3 and in the second Vangilder was forced to accept a 3-to-1 defeat when he deserved a victory.

Brown's Relaxed, Mack Says.
It was not surprised at the outcome, said Coach Mack, manager of the Athletics, after the game.

"We have had the advantage of catching some of the top-notch sluggers just after they had gone through two or three close series with pennant rivals. They relax in spite of themselves and we reap the benefit."

"We did the same thing to Detroit not long ago. The Tigers won three out of the four games, but we got their victories went into 11 innings."

Because of the fact that the Athletics had stopped the Browns when Sisler's club was making a bid for the lead early in the season, there was a general feeling of apprehension before yesterday's double-header. The fans had seen the thing happen before and they were rather ungrateful.

On that earlier occasion the Browns had defeated Boston in the only game played at Hubtown. They had defeated New York 2 out of 3, had split with Washington in four games and then had gone into Philadelphia, where the Athletics called in Sisler's pitchers for three straight triumphs and did not give the Browns a game.

Sisler's Batting Fail.
A lack of batting punch was responsible for the loss of the second game yesterday. That may also mean that Southpaw Stanley Baumgartner was pitching a grand game of ball. He appeared to have curves enough and a fast ball when he needed it. Connie Mack says he's a "wise" pitcher, which means that he keeps the ball where its hard to hit.

Baumgartner is new to the Athletics and to American League fans but he is no youngster. He had a trial with the Philadelphia Nationals about six years ago. At that time he was too erratic to hold on in the majors and he later pitched for Kansas City and the St. Louis Browns in the Eastern League. He is about 30 years old and has learned something about pitching.

Baumgartner No Accident.
To prove that he is no pitching accident, he may be well to record the fact that in his last two games before coming here, he defeated the Cleveland Tigers 13 to 4, and the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 1. He also had defeated the Browns at Philadelphia, 2 to 1, holding them to five hits. He has a record of seven victories and four defeats which is a worthy mark for a pitcher on a talented club.

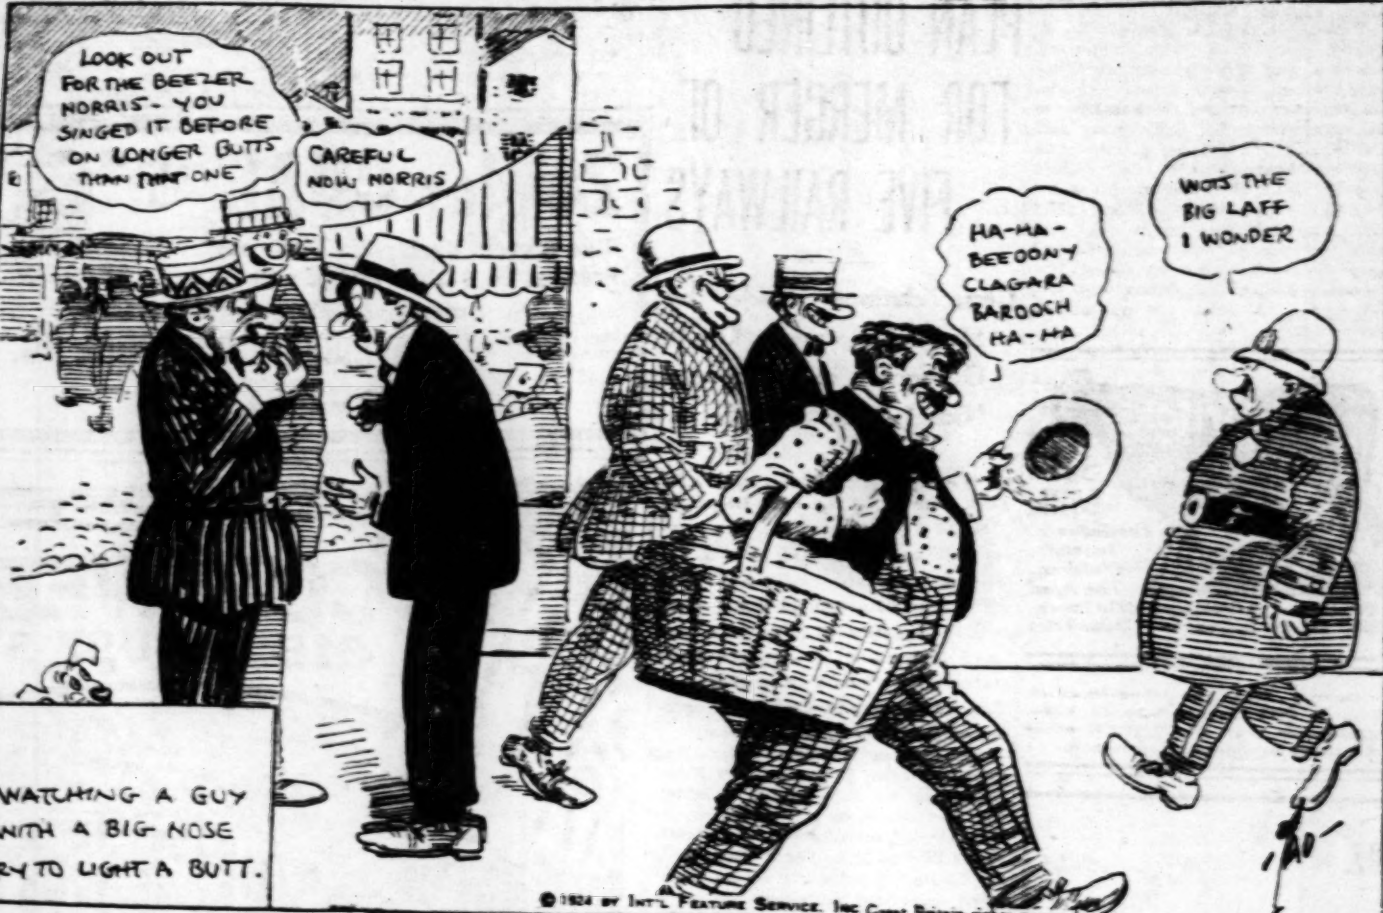

While the 14,000 fans were in most dejected state, the fact that the park after the double defeat, they seemed to enjoy Vangilder's great performance in the finish. Sisler expressed himself as hopeful that Vangilder's work may be the first of a series of good games. "Van" has won only one game this season and if he has finally attained his best form, as appeared to be, the Browns will have their first string hurlers who will win a lot of games between now and the finish.

Good Pitchers Available.
For the remaining three games, Sisler has Wiggan, Crocker and Hanford at his call. Connie Mack is also fortunate in his supply of hurlers. He will have three new ones to add to those he has, Hanford, Heimach and Remmel ready for work.

The double defeat put the Browns two full games behind Washington. The Yankees also advanced a game and a half, but Detroit lost to Boston and therefore just three games ahead of St. Louis.

Kenneth Williams went into yesterday's first game as a pinch hit, but he obtained a single. It was his third appearance since July 1, when he was injured at New York. He was supposed to be another week before he is able to change his being in the outfield for his still limbs.

Gibbons Favored To Win Tomorrow Snodgrass Forced to Surpass Himself to Beat "Old Master"

Advance Sale of 60,000 Seats Indicates Record Crowd May See Bloomfield Bout.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 8.—Tom Gibbons, the American light-heavyweight, is still the favorite in the betting to win over Jack Bloomfield of England in their match tomorrow in the great Wembley Stadium, although the odds on the invader shortened considerably yesterday. The advance sale thus far totals some 60,000 seats, testifies to the great interest in the match.

The colored end of the stadium, the betting to win over Jack Bloomfield of England in their match tomorrow in the great Wembley Stadium, although the odds on the invader shortened considerably yesterday. The advance sale thus far totals some 60,000 seats, testifies to the great interest in the match.

There were only two singles matches played yesterday, as Bob Kinsey and myself reached the semifinal Wednesday.

Howard Kinsey had a much closer match against J. W. P. Whitbeck than the score of 6-1, 6-4 indicates. Kinsey, who is the younger of the two brothers, is one of the hardest men in the game to beat. He is not very good when one sits down and watches him, but he has a great head for the game, and is also a very fast man, who never gets rattled or upset.

Whitbeck made many more aces than his opponent, but it was Kinsey's great steadiness and his clever change of pace that caused his opponent to make many errors off shots that appeared quite simple to handle.

Chop Stroke Kinsey's Reliance.
Kinsey used a chop stroke to his opponent's back-hand and practically won the first set with this particular shot. Whitbeck did not go to the net enough and he never did look like getting more than two games in the first set, but when he started to rush the net in the second set he did much better, but Kinsey's readiness and clever placement and lobbing prevailed in the end and he entered the semifinals with a 6-1, 6-4.

Snodgrass at His Peak.
Harvey Snodgrass, who ranks number 3 but is better than that, played the best tennis of his career yesterday while defeating the great Australian wizard, Norman Brookes, new 46 years old, in a hard-fought and close three-set match.

This was a most thrilling and interesting match and the crowd was greatly applauded and enjoyed every point of it.

Brookes started off very badly, missing all those angular volleys which he usually turns into winners.

Snodgrass, on the other hand, was serving beautifully and running in very close to the net and there cutting off Brookes' weak returns for placements. Everyone expected to see Brookes get his shots working, but it never came and Snodgrass ran out an easy winner of the first set at 6-1.

Then the change which everyone had been waiting for came. Brookes started to win his own service and he was on his toes more and moved about the court with just a little extra pace that shows the necessary gameness to win a close match.

Brookes started with a four-leave lead and then he seemed satisfied to win his own service and save as much energy as possible. Snodgrass took advantage of the service and pulled up to 4-3, but then Brookes served beautifully and ran out with the last two points, the last two points being service aces.

Brookes' Weakness in Last Set.
Brookes again seemed to fall off in the final set, and after Snodgrass had run to 4-1, the veteran made his last effort. He hit every shot as early as possible, to get to the net as soon as he could, and although he was not volleying as well as he has been doing earlier in this work, he has been doing placements to pull up to 2-4.

He dropped the next game chiefly on his own, when his next service to the net was not good. He was not so good and then Snodgrass had to win his own service for the match. Snodgrass served beautifully and caused Brookes to either miss-hit or put away weak returns which the Californian had no difficulty in putting away for placements.

It was a most interesting and closely-fought match, and Snodgrass' victory was a surprise to many, but he has been doing placements to pull up to 2-4.

FAIR RUN OF HOGS AND PRICES ARE UP 12,351,000 BALES OF COTTON FORECAST

FAIR WEATHER WIVES

THE DOLL COMMANDS—CHAPTER 11.
MARJORIE had gone up to dress for dinner when her mother came in. She looked critically at the frock Mathilda was laying out. "Not that rag," she commanded imperiously, waving it away. "The pale blue and silver from Worth, please."

Marjorie's eyes opened wide, questioning. "We are having guests at dinner," Mrs. Bolce-Nevis explained. "You may go, Mathilda. Miss Marjorie will ring when she is ready for you."

She motioned Marjorie to a seat, dropped full-length into a low chaise longue, and lit a cigarette, exhaling the smoke daintily. "Mr. Hollister is coming to dine with us, Marjorie."

"Yes?" murmured Marjorie uninterestedly. Her mother eyed her narrowly. "Do you know who Mr. Hollister is,—what he represents?"

Marjorie shrugged. "I know that he's very wealthy and very prominent."

"And very handsome and charming," prompted her mother softly. Marjorie shrugged again. "I don't like him."

"That's hardly the question," Mrs. Bolce-Nevis' voice was crisp. "As a matter of fact, he likes you—very much."

Marjorie raised incredulous eyes. "I've never seen him but once in my life, the week-end he spent with us before—"

Her mother made a dismissing gesture with the hand bearing the cigarette. "Forgetful characters like Reed Hollister make instant decisions. They know what they want and they go after it. . . . He wants to marry you."

Before the amazement, disbelief, dismay, in her daughter's young face, she laughed softly. "My dear child, don't tell me that you're utterly blind? You must have seen how you bowed him over, even if you are an innocent."

"I didn't," gasped Marjorie. "I never dreamed it."

"Well, no matter," declared Mrs. Bolce-Nevis briskly. "I saw—and was very gratified. The truth of the matter is that, realizing your extreme youth, Mr. Hollister said nothing to you, but asked your father that very week-end for permission to pay his addresses to you," she made a little amused grimace. "Appallingly old-fashioned, of course, but rather attractive in a way. Quite refreshing, in fact, especially from such an undeniable matrimonial catch as Reed Hollister. How he ever escaped the snare laid down for him is a mystery and pure luck. . . . I think, perhaps it was Fate, and he was spared for us."

she added with a whimsical smile. "Oh?" Marjorie raised startled eyes. "Of course, dear child," said her mother smoothly, "for you are

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By WANDA BARTON

NOT all homes are "homey." This may be said as truly of wealthy as of modest homes.

"What makes a home homey?" is a question that naturally follows. That query is not always easy to answer. In some cases it may be mental atmosphere, arrangement of furnishings, harmonious coloring of walls and draperies, lighting, perhaps the cheeriness of an open fire. But whatever it is, we always want to go again to the "homey" home.

There lived a little but big public man not so long ago. These privileged to visit his home always found above the long row of wooden hooks in his hall their names.

Among others, and they knew that they were not only welcome but expected. No wonder he had so many friends. It is little things of this sort that help make even the humblest home "homey."

Open doors give a wonderfully attractive feeling to a home. They should be closed, of course, when necessary demands, but left open as a rule so that the halls will not seem just dim tunnels, but will be lighted by open doorways that give a glimpse of cheery interiors as we pass along. Pretty painted furniture, tinted or prettily-papered walls, fresh, dainty drapery—none of these things is unduly expensive, but they make the whole bedroom floor attractive when they are seen in passing along the hall.

On the lower floor, screens of different sorts will conceal anything that is not intended for the view of the casual onlooker. They may be folded in a corner where they are not in use, yet it is the work of an instant to spread them when it is wise to do so. A screen in the kitchen may be used to conceal the kitchen stove or the table where things are prepared ahead of time for a meal, or to keep in seclusion a basket of clothes ready to be ironed.

The screen in the dining room is also convenient to put around the table where salad or dessert has been placed, while the other courses are being prepared. This avoids the necessity of closing off the room until the formal call for the meal is sounded.

If orange and lemon peels are saved they will prove a great addition to the open fire, as they help to kindle quickly and emit a pleasant odor. The low rack that folds is convenient for the open fire to set the tea tray on for a small group. And there is nothing as "homey" as tea-drinking by a crackling fire.

The piano lamp that lights the music on the piano rack; a shaded light over or beside a door; the good reading lamp on the master's table, the standing lamp at the head of a comfy couch with plenty of pillows and a stand beside it for books, papers, and perhaps pipe and tobacco jar, the foot-rest just at the right height before a deep, inviting chair—all these help to make a home "homey."

The "used" look, the clean but happy confusion that gives a place the appearance of being inhabited, makes a home attractive. It is rooms so desperately orderly that one is afraid to take a chair or a book from where it is placed that repel us. A real home should never give one a hurried, worried feeling. It should be peaceful and restful.

Children in such a home feel its influence and gain poise. They develop along useful lines. The influence is too great to calculate lightly. And the neighbors' children always seem at their best instead of their worst when they visit the "homey" home.

Danish Cheese Cake.
Beat two eggs well, then add to them a pint of milk, a little pepper and salt and a cupful of grated cheese. Pour this mixture into a buttered mold, set the mold in hot water, cover it with paper and bake it until the cake wets. Let it cool and chill, then unmold and serve the cake in slices of lettuce leaves.

French dressing. This is a luscious dressing and though the Danish call it a cake, we would call it an odd salad.

Hats and Gowns Worn At the Fashion Show

SKETCHED BY MARGUERITE MARTIN

Figure No. 1 wears a frock of tobacco brown bengaline embroidered with large motifs in self-colored floss and wooden beads. The back is straight and flat but at the front godets edged with fur are set in to cause a pronounced flare. Its sleeves are tight at the top and fall below the elbow. Streamers of the material swing out from a flat bow at the back of the folded collar.

The hat worn by this model has dashing wings of stiff hatters' plush knotted at the front, beige in color. The upturned brim is faced with flowers like rosettes of metallic ribbons set close together.

No. 2 wears a coat of hand woven material in a Navajo blanket pattern. Stripes of blue, brown, red, orange yellow and black are wrought in wools and join each other hit and miss. Two puffs of Alaska seal make the collar. A band of the fur extends diagonally down the front to a wide border. Clasps of red and yellow synthetic ivory fasten the coat at collar and left hip. The hat worn with this garment is cocoa brown velvet. The top of the brim is covered with ostrich laid flat in stripes matching the coat in colors.

No. 3 wears an ensemble or three-piece costume, its skirt and coat of brown chiffon velvet, its tunic blouse of apricot colored flat crepe. The tunic is embroidered in tiny brown beads. Vertical bands of kolinsky adorn the coat, matching the collar.

The hat worn with this costume is a postillion crowned cloche of saddle colored belting ribbon, its upturned brim faced with brown and the belting ribbon extending out into a fringed scarf over the shoulder.

No. 4 represents a costume coat of a gray cloth called fawn skin. It is a straight lined garment overhanging with a sleeveless jacket which has a broad band of Siberian squirrel round the bottom and up the back in a panel. Deep pockets are buried in the fur.

The hat of gray chiffon velvet and satin has a tall upstanding brim reaching a point at the front.

No. 5 wears a dinner gown of turquoise chiffon embroidered in a bold pattern of lotus leaves done in jade beads outlined and veined with brilliants. Scarfs of chiffon lined with silver are attached to either hip to be twisted about the shoulders or the arms.

Worn with this is a hat having a wide flat brim cut somewhat in the shape of a painter's palette. Peeping out over the edge is a fringe of ostrich fronds.

No. 6 wears a coat of lacquer red fawn skin with a cape which is long and full at the back and edged with gray squirrel. The sides of the cape taper up to a short shoulder cape, postillion fashion at the front.

Worn with this is a broad hat faced with pansy purple velvet. On top of the brim are applied painted panels, the crowns repeating the yellow and orange pansy tones in draped velvet.

No. 7 is a beaded gown on beige crepe, the beads carrying out an all-over pattern of a Chinese print, describing pagodas, lanterns, conventionalized trees and mountains and sea, all in most delicate pastel shades. It is built on tulle lines with underling showing but a few inches defined in stripes of beads. Bands of furs give it lines

one part of the body to another. Some persons experience a periodic attack of hives each year during the berry season. Others cannot partake of shell fish without at the same time suffering more or less with an outbreak of the skin. As a rule it does not last long, but one can never tell whether an attack of hives will be transient or will remain to make the life of the sufferer a burden, for chronic hives is a difficult condition to overcome. The disease may attack persons of any age, but it is most frequent in children.

Because of the uncertainty of its character and duration, it is a great mistake to treat hives lightly—yet this is the popular attitude. Therefore there are many young adults chronically affected who have resorted to every known method of treatment without permanent relief.

As soon as the eruption appears it is good practice to empty the stomach and bowels. Should it occur right after a meal, an emetic will usually cut short the attack.

This may consist of a teaspoonful of mustard in a cup of warm water, or the same amount of wine of ipecac with or without water.

If some hours after the meal, a dose of castor oil, Epsom or Rochelle salts should be given. The diet for the following few days must be light—bread and milk, or broth.

The following lotion is good to allay the eruption: Carbolic acid (phenol), 4 dram; alcohol, 4 dram; camphor water, 6 ounces. Mix. Moisten with absorbent cotton and let dry into the skin.

The late Dr. Shoemaker advised, in cases of chronic hives, 10 drops of fluid extract of Labrador, three times a day (in a wine glass of water). It always the itching and keeps moist the skin which is apt to be dry and harsh in chronic cases.

NETTLE RASH OR HIVES

EVERYBODY is acquainted with the condition popularly called hives. Some persons are peculiarly susceptible to these agents usually held responsible for an attack of hives. Among these are shell fish, berries, oatmeal, mushrooms, pork, sausage; sometimes real causes are outbreaks, sometimes drugs. External causes are contact with the plant called nettle, bites of mosquitoes or other insects, or coarse underwear.

Hives appear on the skin in the form of wheals varying in size from that of a split pea to that of a pigeon's egg. These come on abruptly, accompanied by previous symptoms, accompanied by burning, stinging, tingling and itching of the skin. The eruption appears, disappears and transfers itself from one part of the body to another. Some persons experience a periodic attack of hives each year during the berry season. Others cannot partake of shell fish without at the same time suffering more or less with an outbreak of the skin. ODD AND INTERESTING FACTS

Thomas T. Read, supervising engineer of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, says the St. John del Rey gold mine in Brazil is now the deepest mine in the world. It has a vertical depth of 6724 feet. Since the miners enter the shaft through a horizontal passage 142 feet below the top, the mine might be said to be only 6582 feet deep. The depth of the mine increases at the rate of 160 feet a year. The deepest mine in the United States is 1395 feet.

Soap was manufactured and widely used by the Romans. The elder Pliny, who perished in the destruction of Pompeii, recorded that the manufacture of soap was learned by the Romans after the conquest of Gaul. It is believed that they learned how to make and use soap from the Germanic tribes east of the Rhine.

It is not known for certain when or where coal was first used for fuel. The ancients knew little or nothing of coal. Some authorities say coal was first used by the early Britons. At any rate it was an article of household consumption to some extent among the Anglo-Saxons.

one as early as the middle of the ninth century. Probably the first coal used in America in considerable quantities was taken from deposits discovered near Richmond, Va., in 1791. Mining was begun in this district in 1794. However, extended coal mining in America did not begin until 1829.

Oatmeal Fritters.
Cook oatmeal one hour, pour into a square mold or dish and set away to harden, when ready to use, cut into slices one-half inch thick, then into strips one inch wide; dip in egg, then in dry bread crumbs and fry in the hot fat; drain, dust with sugar. Serve very hot.

APPETIZING SANDWICHES

By HANNAH WING

Authority on All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

FOR making sandwiches that are the place de resistance of the summer picnic or bridge party, one needs to enlarge one's repertoire to include nut and fruit breads. With such delicious coverings as these breads give the filling of the sandwich is of much less importance and may often be better alone. Provided the bread is good, a plain cream cheese filling with these breads never fails to make a sandwich that satisfies.

To make a rich brown, nutty nut bread requires the combined efforts of graham flour, molasses and brown sugar, to say nothing of the importance of the nuts themselves. These should be of high quality, as a rancid or off-flavor nut will ruin the finest bread. Walnuts are the cheapest and pecans the richest nuts to use.

Walnuts will taste better and blend more perfectly with the other ingredients if they are blanched—actively boiled for five minutes—and the skins removed before they are used.

Delicious nut breads may be made with yeast, but many of the most popular ones for summer baking are made with baking powder.

Stewed Apricots.
Wash one-half pound dried apricots well, cover with hot water and soak over night (or several hours at least, if you wish to cook them the same day); cook very, very slowly in the water in which they were soaked, until tender throughout but have not lost their shape; add sugar if you wish, about 25 minutes before removing from fire. Serve with cream.

Easy Ways to Enhance Beauty of Your Hands

By LUCREZIA BORI

Famous Spanish Prima Donna

EXAMINE your hands carefully. Do they appear older or younger than you are?

This practice of stopping occasionally and taking time to judge your hands with the critical eye of a stranger is well worth while.

By doing it, you can take stock of the appearance of your hands. If you saw such hands on the person next to you in a train or a street car and could not see the face of the owner, would you think he was old or young?

Are your hands fat or lean? Do the delicate bones which run from the base of your fingers to your wrists show too prominently, giving your hand the appearance of a claw? Or, on the other hand, is your hand so plump that these bones do not show enough, and does the plumpness round out the lines of your hands until they appear square or actually fat?

All these points are well worth taking into consideration when you set about to judge the appearance of your hands. You will also do well to notice the appearance of your skin, taking particular care to notice the skin at the corners of your nails, and the nails themselves.

To many of these ailments, the best answer is the world's-skin food. If the skin of your hands is rough or coarse or chapped, skin food will do wonders toward imparting the smoothness that makes your complexion attractive. Don't make the mistake of lavishing such care and attention upon your face that you forget to save a bit of the skin food to beautify your hands.

The following course of treatment for your hands will be rewarded by their increasing loveliness.

Wash them carefully before you go to bed at night, with a good, pure soap and warm water. Rinse them in clean water and dry thoroughly with a soft towel.

Now apply your skin food. Use it generously, for if the skin of your hands is dry and really in need of nourishment, it will drink it in eagerly until all of the food is absorbed. Rub the food well into your hands about the corners of your nails. It will soften the cuticle here so that you can push it back out of the way.

Now don't stop, loose gloves and sleep in these all night. If you keep this up, you should notice a decided improvement in the beauty of your hands after just a few nights.

The best way to tone down hands that are too fat is to massage them. Massage with an outward movement, toward the tips of your fingers. Pinch your fingers at the tips as you massage down from the wrist. This will help you to have graceful tapering fingers. If your figure is too fat, your hands will be also, and it may be that dieting will improve your figure, and, incidentally, your hands.

THE GIRL WHO COUNTS

By WM. A. McKEEVER

Lecturer and Authority on Educational and Sociological Subjects.

A CERTAIN city girl, a high-school junior of 16, has just finished putting up 50 quarts of blackberries.

Her father is a city merchant, who, some years ago, saw the value of removing his family of five to the suburbs. "It has been the making of my three children—two boys and a girl," he stated. "We are careful to give them only a measured amount of labor. Everything is balanced—schooling, parties and all," he continued. "Moreover, this daughter is allowed 50 cents per quart for putting up the berries."

There you have it. Everything is balanced. Not an overdose of work, but enough to make it a tonic for the mind and body. Parties and schooling and church-going and work—that is a natural schedule. Such a program of living for girls will put a natural glow upon the face and a clear luster in the eye that flapperism cannot buy.

If your girl is an idler, if she spends her late morning hours in bed, her late evening hours in the city, and her whole life in the city, she is not a city girl. She is a city girl who is not a city girl.

Go at the reformation of your girl over the route of transformation. Change the scene and the setting. Without necessarily discussing the matter at all, bring her gently into contact with some kind of attractive work.

Girls naturally desire to be worth while. If they become mere idlers, someone older is to blame. Not scolding, not a heavy load of work during vacation, "to tame the girl down," not shaming her by comparison—none of these will prove of much worth. A well-balanced plan, a happy mixture of play, work, study, sociability, church attendance and the like—this is the right prescription for your 16-year-old.

Fringe is so much in vogue at present that even the veil is now trimmed with it. For example, a veil in beige silk mesh, with brilliant red dots here and there, is trimmed with red fringe to match. The fringe is silk and long, and the veil covers the hat but not the face.

Why Some Marriages Fail

By Sophie Irene Loebe

Copyright, 1924, Press Publishing Company

SOPHIE IRENE LOEBE

SOMEONE has asked me what is the greatest cause of breaking marriages. I believe if the truth were known and the cases summed up it would be found that the greatest cause of most marital mistakes is too much intimacy.

By this I mean that people, after they are married, want to go on the theory that they are one, which is one of the great fallacies in the actual experience of living.

The fact is, they are two and should regard it this way. But having decided they are one they regard their relationship so close that, paradoxically, they get to know each other too well. They presume on each other too much. They think for each other and talk for each other until one day they awaken to the fact that they are actually two too close. And then they want to break the bonds that bind.

The truth is that they have lost respect for each other. While people can have a great love, a fine companionship, with one and the same interests, yet there are some fine lines that might be drawn in every case that will keep the fire of love alive and hold a continual friendship that will otherwise be broken.

I would suggest as the first requisite to observe the niceties of existence. For example a man should not always decide what his wife should do, and vice versa. There should be a certain amount of willingness to observe the other's wishes. The little courtesies of every day must be maintained.

A bit of romance, of surprises and things of that nature must be forthcoming. And, further, to keep each other guessing a bit is a very good rule to keep the interest alive, and by this I mean not have him or her know exactly what the other is going to do every minute.

One happy wife has told me that the one big way in which she has kept their love alive is that she and her husband have never permitted themselves to overstep the bonds of common usage. For example, he has never entered her room without knocking, also he has always accorded her the same deference as a lady as he would to any other woman, and she has done likewise.

In a word, they have great respect for each other—a fine friendship—and yet have not grown too intimate in their daily relationships.

It might be said that they have never become acclimated with each other. There are periods when they are apart visiting friends, and the joy of getting together is all the more beautiful.

As soon as people know each other overmuch and feel they have the privilege of infringing on each other at all times—this has caused more unrest and disquietude in the marriage relation, perhaps, than any other. To find the happy medium wherein real respect is the great mediator as between the two who love, therein lies the big chance for happiness.

This happens so often with sisters, brothers and other members of a family. At least they can get away from it when they find things irksome. But with the two who are married it is a different matter.

Pistachio Layer Cake.

Cream one-half cup of butter, add gradually one cup of sugar, stirring constantly. Sift pastry flour; measure two cups and sift them three times with three teaspoons of baking powder and a few grains of salt. Add alternately to the first mixture with one-half cup of milk. Beat well. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff and gradually beat them into the mixture with one teaspoon of pistachio extract. Before adding the stiffly beaten eggs to the mixture, beat the batter five minutes to secure a close, fine grain. Bake in two buttered layer cake pans from 12 to 15 minutes. Fill and cover with boiled frosting flavored with pistachio extract and sprinkle thickly with chopped pistachio nuts. Serve at buffet luncheon.

Children's Bedtime Story :: By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Peter's Second Surprise

Opinions formed in too great haste Oft prove opinions gone to waste.

—Peter Rabbit.

JUST wondering and wondering doesn't get you anywhere. It didn't get Peter Rabbit anywhere. It didn't tell him how those two speckled eggs happened to be lying side by side on the big, flat rock in the Old Pasture. So, still wondering, Peter started on. He had gone but a little way when it popped into his head that whoever had left those eggs there might return for them. He hadn't anything in particular to do, and he could watch awhile just as well as not.

So Peter settled himself comfortably under a bush a short distance from that flat rock and waited. The dusk grew deeper. Overhead Boomer the Nighthawk was swooping up, down and around, catching his dinner of insects. Melody the Wood Thrush was still singing over in the Green Forest. Once he heard Reddy Fox bark over in that direction. But no one came for those eggs.

"It's queer about those eggs," said Peter to himself. "Yes, sir, it certainly is queer. I believe I'll go back and have another look at them. The middle of that flat rock is such a queer place for eggs to be that somehow it doesn't seem as if they can be real eggs. Of course, I know they are, but, just the same, I think I'll go over and have another look at them."

So Peter made his way to the flat rock. He looked over to the middle of it. Then he rubbed his eyes and looked again. Those two eggs were not there! At least, he didn't see them. Perhaps it was because it had grown darker. He hopped up on the rock and started for the middle of it where he had seen the two eggs. Then he noticed a little dark bunch of something right where those two eggs had been. When he got close enough he saw that it was a bunch of feathers.

Then he rubbed his eyes and looked again.

"Now, who put those feathers over those eggs?" said Peter, speaking aloud, for he thought he was alone.

The bunch of feathers moved. "What business of yours is it, Peter Rabbit?" demanded a voice somewhat sharply.

Peter was so surprised and so startled that he almost tumbled over backwards. Then because he was so surprised and startled he lost his temper for just a minute. "I guess it is as much my business as it is yours!" he retorted.

"I guess it isn't!" was the sharp reply.

"And I guess that you are just right about that!" cried another voice, so close to Peter's head that he actually dodged. He looked up to see Boomer the Nighthawk carting about just above him. Then he took another good look at the first speaker and discovered that what he had thought was just a bunch of feathers was Mrs. Boomer. Yes, sir, that is just who it was. It was Mrs. Boomer.

"I—I—I beg your pardon, I didn't recognize you at all," stammered Peter. "Are those eggs really yours, Mrs. Boomer? How did they get here on this flat rock? What are you going to do with them? Where is your nest?" Mrs. Boomer began to chuckle. "One question at a time, Peter," said she.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

New Saucepans. When purchasing a saucepan be sure it has an indentation or "lip" for pouring. The perfectly round saucepans can be most aggravating when trying to pour liquids into smaller vessels.

Watermelons Are Here. A novel and convenient way to serve watermelon is to cut the heart of the melon into pieces about an inch square and place them in a dish on the ice. Serve in cracked ice in a large bowl.

Color Brighteners. When washing that colored cotton dress for the first time, be sure to put about one tablespoon of salt to each quart of water used. Use vinegar in the same proportions in the rinse water. It will keep and brighten the colors for you.

About the Birds. If you enjoy watching the birds in their home life, why not build a bird house? Do not, however, build many bird houses, as only a few would be occupied. Birds do not like close neighbors either other birds or people, and if you do build a house, watch it, but do not touch it.

DAVIS A HEARTY WELCOME HOME

Hundreds Crowd About Presidential Nominee
to Shake Hands and

WILL REST BEFORE
BEGINNING TOUR

Plans to Deliver First Campaign Speech at Some Point in Middle West
Probably in Ohio.

By the Associated Press.
CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 2.—
John W. Davis came home today to find strength, simple encouragement and support from his lifelong friends and neighbors.

Here in the hills where he lived his life until a few years ago
when he was sent, as he expected
it, to be "a wanderer on the face of the earth," he found a scene that touched him so deeply that he stood with tears coursing his cheeks while he sought words that might express his emotion.

"In the presence of this, in the sight of these friendly faces," the Democratic presidential candidate said, "My heart goes out from me and I must wait to speak until it comes back to me again."

"It is not by accident," not by mere caprice, not without forethought that in this crisis of my life I have come back here for strength, for sympathy, for encouragement and for spirit. I shall leave you strengthened and hearted
for the heavy task that lies ahead."

Davis spoke from the veranda of his family home to hundreds who had been able to find places on the lawn. He was officially welcomed by Harrington S. Otis, the city manager, and Samuel R. Bentley, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Grasping Davis' hand and shaking it with vigor as he spoke, Bentley declared that all of Clarksburg joined in welcoming him home.
"We realize," he said, "that you can be in our midst for only a short time, but when you leave our gates our hopes and our hearts go with you."

Recounting Davis' services and
the honors conferred upon him, Otis declared that no honor could come "like the wholesome love of the friends who call you John."

When the nominee's train pulled into the station, after an overnight run from New York, it seemed as though all of Clarksbu-rg were there to greet him. The approaching whistle of the locomotive was drowned out by a roar of cheering that spread from the first small boy's cry, "Here he comes."

Davis was on the rear platform
of his special car before the train had come to a stop. At the first glimpse of their most distinguished fellow townsman, the welcoming hosts gave him an affectionate greeting as the bands struck up lively air.

Made It Personal Homecoming.
Davis was quickly surrounded by hundreds who sought to make his homecoming a very personal
one. Most of them were friends whom he greeted with a handclasp and the use of their Christian names.

Mrs. Davis found a welcome no less hearty. As she came from the train, she carried a bouquet of flowers presented to her at Grafton.
The first stop in West Virginia
Other flowers were pressed upon her in protestation by the committee of women officially designated to extend Clarksbu-rg's welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis made their way slowly through the pressing throng to the automobiles which took them to their homes. With a hand in front and another behind the procession of cars began the march to the homestead on Lee street. Thousands who had crowded the sidewalks along the line of march crowded into the streets. Davis stood in his car with bared head, bowing and smiling in response to the applaudi-ng and again and again leaning over to catch the hand of a friend or neighbor that he saw in the crowd.

While the official homecoming was here, Davis was first greeted in his native state by the citizens of Grafton. A crowd was gathered at the station there and lustily cheered the Democratic standard-bearer as he moved forward to a baggage truck nearby, from which he addressed his fellow West Vir-gians briefly. Expressing heartfelt appreciation for the welcome accorded him, Davis said that this was not "The first occasion

SCIENTIFIC TRAINING.

MR. FERGUSON was approached by his son, Edgar, aged eight, who said he wished to collect something. All the other boys of his group were collecting things—postage stamps or botanical specimens or birds' eggs or what-not, and by their examples his own ambitions had been fired.

"Well, now," said Mr. Ferguson, "that's a bully idea, my son.
It's great for a boy of your age to have a fad. In fact, it's great for everybody to have a fad. But if I were you I'd go in for something that would keep you outdoors and give you a love of nature.
Who knows—you might grow up to be a naturalist!"

"Well, there's bird eggs," suggested Edgar. "Billy Erwin, he's collecting bird eggs."

"No, that's cruel," said his father. "We've almost wiped out some of our song birds. What you should do is to protect birds' nests, not rob them."

"Well, how about dried flowers and leaves and grass and stuff like that?"

"No, I don't believe I'd recommend that, either," said Mr. Ferguson. "Not that there's anything wrong with it, but botany always seemed to me to be a hobby better suited for little girls than for little boys. Let me see, now—I've got it. Why don't you go in for butterflies and moths? They are pretty to look at—moths are—and there are ever so many different varieties of them and they produce noxious worms, most of them."

The notion appealed to his son. It would be a novelty anyhow, none of the other boys were going in for that sort of thing.

"But you want to go at it scientifically," counseled Mr. Ferguson, when this decision had been reached. "You'll need a cabinet and a lot of other supplies. And you'll also need to read up on the subject. Suppose you run down to the public library and ask Miss Jones, the librarian, to let you see the list of books devoted to natural history subjects and you pick out the right ones and bring me the titles and I'll order them for you."

Fired with enthusiasm, Edgar marched away. In an hour he was back.

"Miss Jones wasn't there, father," he said. "Nobody was there except the janitor. But he knew you were a subscriber and he let me look at all the books on the shelves. But he didn't know where the 'special books about natural history' were. So I just looked first one place and then another. But I only found one book that might help me. I put the name of it down."

"Well, now, that shows sense," said Mr. Ferguson, admiringly.
"You've made a beginning anyway. What is it called?"

Edgar produced a scrap of paper and from a glance at what was written there refreshed his memory:

"It's called 'Advice to Young Moth-ers.'"

DAMPNESS WOULD BE THEIR SOLE REWARD.

THE dusky converts stood at the water's edge awaiting the ceremony of being dipped. The officiating clergyman—a bulky Bishop of the Colored Baptist Church—saw fit to exhort them before he led them, one by one, out into the stream.

"My brethren and sisters," he said, "hark to my words. 'Taint
'nuff that you should have words of thanksgivin' on yore lips. 'Taint ample that you is shoutin' out 'hallelujahs' and 'amens' till yore throats is hoarse an' yore voices break in the middle. No sux."

"Onlessen you get the spirit of the Lawd presun' heavy 'pon you an' the oltetime religion in yore souls; onlessen you is filled wid happy hopes of the hereafter an' fear of ole Satan; onlessen you feels that the angels is lookin' down on you wid favor from Heaven above an' the
that the cherubims is singin' sweet praise for yore salvation an' the Pearly Gates is done swung wide open to welcome you ez worthy pilgrims an' de golden harp is tuned for you and yore wings is waitin'
to be fitted onto your shoulders; onlessen you has all dese here feelin's, you won't git nothin' when you is immersed in the holy waters of the River Jordan—'cept wet!"
